Tourists visiting this State cannot find a more beautiful and diversified trip. The steamers leave the ferry slip at foot of Market street for Sausalito, the only Resort on the Bay where good bathing, boating and fishing can be had. The route from here runs along Richardson's Bay to the base of Mount Tamalpais, one of the most striking features of the Bay of San Francisco. Stopping at the station named after the mountain, the traveler will find stages ready to take him up to the top of this giant, from which a magnificent view of the Farallone Islands and the Pacific Ocean can be had. One mile from this you reach Ross Station, the starting point for Bolinas, the most fashionable watering place on the Coast. Three miles further you commence to climb White's Hill, and before reaching its summit you will have witnessed two such perfect "Horseshoe Bends" that almost convince the traveler that he is traveling another road than that over which he has just passed. Almost immediately after the descent of this mountain commences, views of the picturesque valley of the Lagunitas greet the eye, and in a few minutes the engineer receives orders for the train to stop so that he can throw his line in the rippling waters of the Paper Mill Creek, which are filled with trout. At thirty miles, or only two hours from the city, you reach Camp Taylor, where the business man or city traveler can find rest and refreshment. Three miles from this you reach Tocaloma Station, where stages are ready to drive you to Olema Town, or through Bear Valley, one of the most beautiful in the world, to the Ocean, a distance of six miles; five miles from this you reach Point Reyes Station, where stages are found waiting to convey you to the site of the New Hotel "Inverness," which will vie with any on the Pacific Coast. Almost immediately fronting this hotel is one of the finest beaches in the State. A short distance from this station the route skirts the Bay of Tomales for nearly sixteen miles, whose waters are filled with fish and covered with wild fowl. Reaching the top of Tomales Hill you enter the town of that name, the center of a prosperous agricultural region. From this station to Valley Ford, distant six and one half miles, the country is chiefly devoted to potatoes and grain; thence to Freestone, four and one-quarter miles, where the aroma from the encircling Redwoods is first detected, but upon arriving at Howards (or Occidental, as the Postoffice is still called), distant only three and three-quarter miles, you are fully impressed with the wonderful appearance of these peaceful cities "Giants of the Forests!" From this station large quantities of lumber, bark and wood are shipped, from here to Duncan's Mills Station, a distance of ten miles, splendid salmon and trout fishing, boating and bathing are to be had along the banks of the Russian River; thence along Austin Creek for a distance of seven and a half miles to Cazadero, the present terminus of the road, and one of the loveliest spots in the State, the climate being as soft and mild as that of Southern France.

The Hotels and adjoining cottages all along the route have been thoroughly renovated and fitted up with all modern improvements, and are now being kept by experienced men, who know the value and importance of a good table.

Cut-off Slide Valve Engines.

Design and mechanism entirely new. Conceded by all experts to be the best ever built. A better cut-off engine than the best Corliss, with all the simplicity and durability of the common slide valve engine.

NEW CYLINDERS CAN BE SUBSTITUTED ON CORLISS OR BOX FRAMES.

The Committee of Awards, Mechanics' Institute Industrial Exposition, San Francisco, 1889, says:

"This engine, which is of the Automatic Independent Cut-off class, presents many radical improvements upon those which have hitherto been considered the highest type of steam engineering practice, inasmuch as the same results are obtained with a great reduction in the number of working parts and joints. The engine is compact, strong and symmetrical in design and presents a handsome appearance. It is fitted with four main slide valves, working entirely independently of each other in separate chambers, all their valves and cut-off being operated with one eccentric. It is a remarkable feature of this engine that all four valves and cutoff are operated with but one joint or working part between them and the eccentric. The cut-off, which is exceedingly rapid, is operated by steam pressure. Owing to the simplicity, [illegible] mum." Gold Medal.

The governor is very sensitive, a movement of one quarter of an inch of the balls making all the variation from a closed to a full open port. Typical tests of its [illegible] control by the governor is shown in the following engines now working.

A 14 inch bore, 20-inch stroke, running our works.

CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL

RAILWAY COMPANY

Now Owns and Operates 5,670 Miles of Thoroughly Equipped Road in

ILLINOIS, WISCONSIN, MINNESOTA,

IOWA, MISSOURI AND DAKOTA.

Each recurring y ar its lines are extended in all directions to meet the necessities of the rapidly populating sections of country West, Northwest and Southwest of Chicago, and to furnish a market for the products of the Greatest Agricultural and Stock Raising Districts of the World.

In Illinois it operates 316 Miles of Track, in Wisconsin 1,304 Miles,

In Iowa 1,572 Miles, in Minnesota 1,122 Miles,

In Dakota 1,216 Miles, in Missouri 140 Miles,

And the end is not yet. It has terminals in such large cities as

Chicago, Milwaukee, La Crosse,

St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo,

Sioux City, Council Bluffs, Omaha,

Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo.

And along its lines are hundreds of large and small thriving cities, towns and villages. Manufacturing interests are cultivated, and all branches of trade find encouragement. The Railway Company has a just appreciation of the value of its patrons, and its magnificent earnings are the result of the good business tact which characterizes the management of its affairs.

The popularity of the line is attested by the fact that notwithstanding the strongest kind of competition of old and new lines, the CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL RAILWAY continues to carry the greater portion of all the business between CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE, ST. PAUL and MINNEAPOLIS. It is the best patronized route between CHICAGO, COUNCIL BLUFFS and OMAHA, and to and from all points in WISCONSIN, MINNESOTA, DAKOTA and IOWA, and its KANSAS CITY AND ST. JOSEPH LINE will undoubtedly take equal rank with the older lines leading to and from the Southwest.

On all its through lines of travel the CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL RAILWAY runs the most perfectly equipped trains of

SLEEPING, PARLOR AND DINING CARS AND COACHES.

The through trains on all its lines are systematically heated by steam. No effort is spared to furnish the best accommodations for the least money, and, in addition patrons of the road are sure of courteous treatment from its employes.

SCHOOL FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG LADIES.

This School was founded in the Autumn of 1872 by Miss Harriet N. Field. It was intended to meet the demand for a School which should give its pupils, while acquiring a thorough education, the advantages of a highly cultured Ch istian home. It is Christian, but not sectarian. Its aim has always been to combine with careful mental training, the best physical, social and religious development.

The School, on the corner of Telegraph Avenue and Knox Place, is beautifully located, commanding an extended view of the foot-hills and the surrounding country. There is a fine lawn in front, and a large playground in the rear of the building. The main building, three stories high, contains the parlors, reception room, a well-furnished library (to which the pupils have free access), the music rooms, young ladies' room, dining-room and kitchen. The school building contains the assembly room and the recitation rooms of the academic department.

The two cottages contain, beside family rooms, the preparatory rooms, the laboratory, and the classroom for the sciences. From the main building to the first cottage extends a long, covered walk which furnishes a good place for a promenade in rainy weather.

The gymnasium is of good size and has sufficient apparatus to make physical exercise a pleasure. Particular attention is given to the preservation of health and to physical training.

The studio, which is in the main building, contains a goodly number of casts and other aids to art study.

The seminary has a large collection of minerals and zoological specimens.

The school is well equipped in every department. The corps of SIXTEEN teachers is of the ablest. The course of study is that of the best seminaries of the East. Special attention is paid to English throughout the entire course, by studying, reading the best authors, and by composition. Even the advanced classes devote much time to these branches. The school prepares for the University of California and for Eastern Colleges. There is no extra charge for Latin. The best instructors give lessons in French, German, Spanish, Painting, Drawing, Instrumental and Vocal Music.

The School has a large patronage, and has won, by its thoroughness and good work in all departments, a high reputation.

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND, CAL.

THIS EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION is situated in the City of Oakland, which is noted for the number and high standing of its schools, and is justly considered one of the most delightful localities on the Pacific Coast. It was founded in 1868 by the SISTERS OF THE HOLY NAMES OF JESUS AND MARY, from Montreal, P. Q. This religious order, so well known in the Dominion of Canada, the Eastern States and Oregon, is chiefly devoted to teaching, and the members are specially trained and educated for that most important office.

The Convent, on Webster street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, stands on the shores of Lake Merritt, in the midst of a charming landscape. Both art and nature have vied with each other in beautifying the spot. With most complete accommodations in every department, this school offers uncommon advantages for the moral, mental and physical training of young girls.

ORANGE is a beautiful town of 1,200 inhabitants, which, by vote of the people and the City Council, has excluded all saloons from its borders. It is also one of the healthiest points in Southern California. Its climate is matchless, the town being only ten miles from the sea. It is located on the Santa Fe Railway, at the junction of the main line and the Riverside branch; also, near the Southern Pacific Railroad.

The College building is a fine three-story brick structure, with over eighty finely finished rooms.

PREFACE.

THIS the second volume of the CALIFORNIA GAZETTEER AND BUSINESS DIRECTORY, is presented to the public, with the assurance of the publishers that no pains or expense have been spared in the endeavor to make it the most complete and reliable work of the kind ever issued in this State. Among its contents will be found carefully prepared lists of all persons engaged in business, alphabetically arranged under towns, and classified under their respective business headings; also, descriptive sketches of the State, counties, cities, towns and villages, setting forth the resources of each section, together with valuable statistics relating to population, commerce, agriculture, mining, manufactures, etc. We desire to call attention to the fact, that a comparison of our estimates of population with the returns of the United States Census of the present year will show that in the main our figures are higher, but we believe it will be generally conceded that they are not exaggerated.

For the benefit of persons at home and abroad, we have marked with an asterisk (*) the names of reliable parties in many localities who will cheerfully furnish information in regard to lands and the resources of their section of the State.

Sincerely thanking all who have responded to our requests for information, also our numerous patrons for their liberal support, we remain,

Respectfully,

R. L. POLK & CO.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

To describe California is to describe not a state, but an empire. In diversity of soil, climate, and productions it easily equals any half-dozen of the other states of the Union, and in size it is surpassed only by Texas. It excels Florida in the growth of the orange and the lemon, and Delaware in the culture of the peach; while it has no rival in the production of the apricot, nectarine, fig, olive, grape, almond, and walnut. Five states in the Union surpass it in wheat production, but it leads all in the yield of barley, wool, wine, raisins, dried and canned fruit. It ranked, according to the census of 1880, the ninth among the states in aggregate wealth and the first in per capita wealth, while it stood twelfth on the list for the value of its manufactures. It boasts also of some of the greatest natural curiosities in the world, as well as of a score of the largest enterprises. It has the tallest trees in the world in the Calaveras grove; the greatest mountain-walled valley in the Yosemite; the largest vineyard, fruit farm, dairy, orange grove, and almond and peach orchards; the largest mining ditch, the largest irrigating ditch, and the largest reservoir for the storage of water; the largest hotel, the greatest railroad corporation, and the most productive placer and quartz mines.

DESCRIPTION OF THE STATE.

California is 770 miles in length by 330 miles in breadth, and has an area of 156,511 square miles, but it is only by comparison that one can get an idea of its magnitude. The state extends along the Pacific as far as from Cape Cod to Charleston, S. C. It is larger than Michigan and Minnesota combined, and nearly four times as large as New York. A single county—San Bernardino—would contain Vermont, Massachusetts, and Connecticut, while an average-sized county like Monterey would hold Rhode Island and Delaware and have room to spare. The state extends from the parallel of 42° on the north, which is the southern boundary of Oregon, to the parallel of 32½° on the south, which forms the boundary line between the state and the peninsula of Lower California. The 120th meridian forms its eastern boundary until the 39th parallel is reached, when the state line extends obliquely to the southeast, until it intersects the 35th parallel at the Colorado river; then it follows the river down to the junction with the Gila, where the Mexican line begins. The western boundary is formed by the Pacific ocean.

ITS PECULIAR TOPOGRAPHY.

The topography of California accounts for most of its peculiarities of soil and climate. There is the great central valley region, 450 miles long, that drains into the ocean through the bay of San Francisco, and which includes one-third of the area of the state. This valley is barred off from harsh east winds by the lofty Sierra Nevada range, snow-capped throughout the year, and it is protected from the fog and trade winds of the Pacific by the Coast range of mountains, the only break in which occurs at the Golden Gate. The Sierra is nearly 600 miles long, and consists of a succession of lofty peaks, reaching their greatest height in Mt. Whitney, 14,887 feet. Its gradual slope to the west gives to California the rich and attractive foot-hill counties that extend from the snow-clad mountains down to the warm and fertile valleys. The Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers drain this great interior valley, and they have many important tributaries whose sources are fed by the snows of the Sierra. The largest tributaries of the Sacramento are the Yuba, Feather, American, Cosumnes, and Mokelumne, while those of the San Joaquin are the Stanislaus, Merced, Fresno, and Kings rivers. The principal rivers that empty into the ocean, and that have their rise in the Coast range, are the Klamath, Eel, and Salinas. South of the San Joaquin valley is a great interior basin that does not drain into the sea, and which is composed largely of the Mojave and Colorado deserts, with the rich alluvial lands that form what are known as the southern California counties. The region lying between the Coast range and the sea at the north is heavily wooded, and forms the great redwood belt; while to the south this strip comprises some of the most fertile lands in the state, when properly irrigated. The Coast range never rises above 4,000 feet in height. There are many large lakes in California. Tulare lake has an area of 700 square miles, and is situated in the lower part of the San Joaquin valley; it is only 40 feet deep, and its waters are steadily receding. In the Sierra are Lake Tahoe, the most beautiful of the mountain lakes, with a depth of 1,500 feet; Mono lake, that forms the sink of streams in the high Sierra; and Owens lake, that is the sink of the Owens river, and is below the sea level.

EARLY HISTORY.

As a state, California has a brief but eventful history; but as a province of Spain and Mexico, its records extend over nearly three centuries. From the time of Cortez, the Spaniards had an eager curiosity to explore the unknown shore to the north of the Gulf of California. Many expeditions were sent out, but the chief of these explorers were Cabrillo and Vizcaino. The former first visited California in 1542. It was not until two hundred years after, in 1769, that the Spaniards obtained any foothold in the country, and this they secured by the cross and not by the sword. The priest succeeded where the soldier failed. The Jesuits had founded many missions in Lower California, but it remained for Father Junípero Serra, a Franciscan monk, to establish the long chain of missions which stretched along the coast for five hundred miles. Each mission was the center of a great establishment, where the Indians were taught the rudiments of religion, and made to labor in the fields of the fathers. By 1804, there were nineteen of these missions in California, and two others were afterward established. The Indian converts numbered 20,000, while the herds of cattle and flocks of sheep were the envy of their neighbors. Meanwhile the Spaniards had established military posts at the chief points along the coast and at several places in the interior. The country was ruled by governors sent out by Spain, and the land was portioned in huge grants among the wealthy colonists, who raised cattle and sheep. The Spanish authority lasted until 1822, when the government of the country passed into the hands of Mexico. During this period, the missions acquired great influence and wealth; but the jealousy of the Mexican colonists began to be aroused, and in 1835 the missions were secularized. The law provided for the apportionment of the lands and herds between the Indians and the white settlers, but the latter secured about everything. Mexican rule was characterized by frequent revolutions, and the country was ripe for a change when the Americans appeared.

The first of the adventurous American hunters and trappers came in 1826. They were followed in 1839 by Captain John Sutter, who secured a large grant of land in what is now the heart of the Sacramento valley; he established a great ranch, and as justice of the peace actually ruled the country for several years. The arrival of Fremont, the Pathfinder, in 1846, increased the hostility which the aggressive American settlers had excited. The natives tried to capture Fremont, but failed. After some skirmishes, attended with little bloodshed, the American flag was hoisted at Monterey on July 7, 1846, and California practically became a part of the Union, although it was not until May, 1848, that the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo ceded California to the United States as one of the fruits of the Mexican war.

THE GOLD DISCOVERY.

Many immigrants began to come into the country across the plains, but it was not until gold was discovered in the race of Sutter's mill, at Coloma, on January 19, 1848, that the phenomenal settlement of California began. As soon as authentic news of the finding of gold reached the East, there began a rush to California such as has never been equaled in the history of this country. No accurate record was kept, but good estimates place the number of immigrants who reached California in 1849 at 80,000, and more than 120,000 followed in the next three years. The gold rush brought many desperate men to California, but it also brought the young and adventurous, eager to make their fortunes. These pioneers were picked men, for only the most robust could hope to endure the hardships of the long journeys and the privations of life in the mining camps. They furnished the qualities that have made Californians celebrated for enterprise, pluck, and tireless energy. For a decade this rush of settlers continued. San Francisco sprang at one bound from a village to a great city; many mining towns were the seat of trade that was worth several millions a year; when the placer mines were exhausted, the hydraulic method was introduced, and this was followed by the still more costly method of quartz mining.

As early as 1849, the need of a stable government had become so urgent that a convention was held, a state government adopted, and two U. S. senators elected, before the state was actually admitted to the Union, on September 9, 1850. In the annals of Anglo-Saxon self-government, nothing has ever surpassed the skill with which the California pioneers regulated their affairs. Twice was San Francisco called upon to form a vigilance committee to rid the young city of the criminals that threatened to gain complete control of the government and the courts. The work was done thoroughly, and law and order were assured. In the mining camps Judge Lynch was frequently called on to sit in judgment on offenders, but fair play always prevailed, though swift and certain punishment was meted out to the criminals. When the rebellion broke out California was so remote that many fears were expressed for her loyalty; but, though no draft was ever levied, and though many left for the Southern army, the state remained faithful to the Union. It was in the darkest days of the war that Governor Leland Stanford and his associates carried on the building of the Central Pacific Railroad, which has done more than anything else for the rapid development of the state. The completion of this first of the transcontinental roads marks the beginning of the great western empire. It brought the country into close relations with the East, and it induced a great emigration from the older-settled states.

POPULATION.

The present population of the state can only be gained by estimate. The U. S. census of 1880 gave 850,000, and the yearly percentage of increase in the preceding decade as 5.4. A careful estimate by the state authorities in 1885 put the population at 1,165,000. The years 1886 and 1887 saw an immigration unparalleled since the early days of the gold excitement, and from the figures given by the railroad companies it is estimated that 150,000 were added in those two years, making the total at the close of 1887 1,315,000. Since then the increase has not been so rapid, but the present population is estimated at 1,450,000.

CLIMATE.

California has many climates, due to the influence of mountains and distance from the sea. In the high Sierra, and the extreme northern parts of the state, one may secure a winter climate like that of Minnesota, with dry, bracing air and heavy snow, while along the edge of the Colorado desert one may select a home where rain seldom falls, the mercury rarely drops below 70 degrees, and the sun shines 350 days in the year. Between these two extremes California affords every variety of climate, but the marked features are absence of extreme changes of temperature, lack of rain during six months, and the stimulating character of the air. California, in fact, resembles Italy and Spain in climate more closely than any other countries, but it has a variety of thermal belts of which neither of the old-world countries can boast. Of course the Kuro-Siwo, or Japanese gulf stream, is the great agent in giving California a mild winter and a cool summer climate. Its width here is fully 500 miles, and its depth at least one mile. By its influence the region between the Sierra Nevada and the sea, which by latitude ought to be as cold in winter as the Mississippi valley, is saved from all extremes of cold, and the temperature rarely descends below the freezing point.

For convenience, the state may be divided into several thermal belts. The first includes the Sierra, where the mean temperature in summer is 65 degrees, and in winter 25 degrees. Then comes the foot-hill region of the Sierra, with a climate fully ten degrees milder than the Sierra; then the coast belt from the Oregon line to San Francisco, and extending back twenty miles, a section where the mean temperature is 55 degrees, the heat never oppressive, and where one may do the largest amount of work with the least effort; next to this is the belt that rings the great interior valleys, and which has a mean of 60 degrees; then we have what is styled the "thermal belt," forming the great Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys and the southern counties of San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego. The mean temperature here is from 60 to 65 degrees, and hard frost is almost unknown. The final belt is that which includes the Mojave and Colorado deserts—rainless, intensely hot in summer, and yet subject to bleak winds in winter.

The seasons are marked off distinctly into the rainy and the dry seasons. The rainy season begins usually in November and extends to April. The rainfall varies from an average of about 8 inches in the lower San Joaquin valley to 29 inches in the upper Sacramento valley, giving the average for the state at about 16 inches. With the first winter rains the farmer begins work, and the success of grain and all other crops that are not irrigated depends upon the proper regulation of the amount of rain that falls. After April it is unusual to have any rain for six months.

HEALTH AND PLEASURE RESORTS.

California has many health and pleasure resorts, but the foremost place must be given to the world-famous Yosemite valley, which lies in the heart of the high Sierra in Mariposa county. It is 165 miles from San Francisco, and is easily reached by train and stage-coach. In no other mountain valley in this country, and perhaps in none in the world, are to be found walls of such great height, rising nearly perpendicular from the base, or waterfalls of such great beauty. The walls enclosing the valley vary in height from 1,200 to 4,700 feet, yet in the face of most of them trails have been dug which allow the tourist to gain points of vantage from their summits. The chief features of the valley are El Capitan, a huge, smooth mass of rock 3,300 feet above the valley; Glacier Point 3,705 feet high, Sentinel Dome 4,150 feet, Half Dome 4,737, and Cloud's Rest 6,150 feet. The valley, it must be remembered, is 4,000 feet above sea level. The largest of the waterfalls is the Yosemite, which leaps down 2,550 feet in three distinct falls; the upper and most beautiful cataract has a sheer fall of 1,500 feet. The other important falls are the Nevada, Vernal and Bridal Veil falls. The state has reserved the valley as a park, and has recently completed a fine hotel.

Objects of interest that vie with Yosemite are two groves of big trees, one in Calaveras, and the other in Mariposa county. The Calaveras grove numbers more than 100 large-sized trees. The tallest is 325 feet high, while a score are over 250 feet; the largest has a circumference of 95 feet. This grove is on one of the main lines into the Yosemite, and has a good hotel. The Mariposa grove is generally visited by those who enter Yosemite by the new Raymond route. It has 427 trees, of which the highest is 272 feet, and the circumference of the largest is 91½ feet.

Prominent among the natural curiosities of the state are the Geysers of Sonoma county. They consist of hundreds of springs, many of boiling water, situated in a ravine, the soil of which is hot for a quarter of a mile square. Some of the springs emit jets of water and steam. The most remarkable is the Steamboat Geyser, which blows off steam with a great noise. Another is the Witches' Cauldron, seven feet in diameter, and which has never been sounded by plummet. These springs deposit the various minerals with which they are impregnated—sulphur, iron, alum, magnesia, soda, etc. The springs and hotel are in a narrow canyon which is reached by one of the most picturesque drives in California.

Other well-known mineral springs are Calistoga, at the upper end of Napa Valley, which has many hot springs scattered over several hundred acres; Mark West, Litton and Taylor's springs, in Sonoma county; Napa Soda springs, Skaggs', Summit Soda, Adams', Ætna and White Sulphur springs, in Napa county; Bartlett, Highland and Harbin's springs in Lake county; Pacific Congress springs in Santa Clara county; Paso Robles in San Luis Obispo; and San Bernardino hot springs.

Among pleasure resorts a leading place must be given to the seaside resorts. Monterey, 120 miles from San Francisco, and reached by the swiftest train west of Chicago, is noted for its magnificent Hotel del Monte and grounds, and for its fine bathing pavilion, in which are four large tanks, each 50x36 feet, filled with sea water heated to various temperatures. Three miles distant is Pacific Grove Retreat, once a camp-meeting ground, but now a village of pretty cottages among the pines. The seventeen-mile drive from the Hotel Del Monte around the peninsula of Monterey is one of the most picturesque in the state. Across the bay from Monterey is Santa Cruz, a popular resort, which has a fine bathing beach, and is surrounded by a country rich in natural curiosities. The greatest of these is the big trees, seven miles distant. Here is a grove of redwoods of 20 acres, with one tree 18 feet in diameter and more than a score ten feet or more in diameter. All about Santa Cruz are fine drives, with resorts for camping and hunting in the wild Santa Cruz mountains.

In the south the leading seaside resorts are Santa Barbara, which has an unusually equable climate, a good beach, and the famous Arlington hotel; San Diego, with an unsurpassed beach, fine scenery, and the Hotel del Coronado, on the beach opposite the city, the largest seaside hotel in the world; Santa Monica, the resort of Los Angeles, famous for its beach and its hotel, and Long Beach, also a noted watering-place.

It is impossible in these limits to even name the prominent inland pleasure resorts in the southern counties. Most of the new towns and colonies in these counties have made a specialty of accommodating tourists, and Riverside, Pasadena, and many of the colonies about Los Angeles have built immense hotels for invalids and tourists.

Among mountain resorts the most popular are Lake Tahoe, which may be reached by rail, and which gives fine Sierra scenery, boating and trout fishing, and Mt. Shasta, which rises 14,440 feet above the surrounding plain, and is easily climbed.

WHEAT AND BARLEY.

In wheat California stands fifth in the list of states. For twenty years the fertile lands of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys have been regularly cropped in wheat, and still the yield remains almost as large as when the land was new. The climate helps the grain-grower, as after the wheat begins to head there is never any danger of rain; all the harvesting operations are carried on in the open field, and the grain is left sacked up until it is hauled to the warehouse for shipment. The chief wheat-growing counties are Sutter, Stanislaus, Colusa, Yolo, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Merced, and Tulare. The wheat product of 1887 was 12,887,092 centals, and the exports were 13,480,448, valued at $19,880,626, as against 8,735,531 centals for 1888, 15,732,435 for 1885, and 11,282,548 for 1884. The annual average wheat shipments for eight years have amounted to 15,000,000 centals, valued at $22,000,000. The banner year was 1881-2, when the exports were 22,279,545 centals, valued at $36,376,100.

In connection with wheat, California does an enormous business in flour, the exports for 1889 being 906,957 barrels, valued at $3,925,185. The exports in 1885 were 1,304,641 barrels, valued at $5,322,438; 1888, 992,546 barrels, valued at $3,992,506.

In barley, California leads all the states, the average annual crop for the last eight years being 20,000,000 bushels. Last year's crop was 14,000,000 bushels. The exports for 1889 were 928,299 centals, valued at $1,031,181.

The hop crop for 1889 was 35,000 bales, as against 36,424 bales for 1887, 28,411 bales for 1886 and 41,231 bales for 1884.

FRUIT-GROWING.

No industry in California has grown so rapidly or promises to be of such great value as fruit-growing. Most of the fruit trees have been planted within the last fifteen years. It has been found that the old foot-hill mining counties are admirably adapted to nearly all kinds of fruit, and lands which have been used only for grazing have been planted to all kinds of fruit with the best results. It is estimated that there are now over 12,000,000 fruit trees in the state, and the planting this year could not have been less than 500,000. To give an idea of what has been done, Placer county seven years ago did not have a hundred orange trees; to-day it ranks third among the citrus counties, while it boasts of the earliest deciduous fruit in the market. Butte county is another instance of the great development of fruit culture. At least one-third of the state is suited to the growth of the orange and lemon, while all the deciduous fruits may be grown everywhere except in the Sierra and immediately along the ocean. Fruit trees grow with great rapidity, the majority of the deciduous varieties bearing full crops in the third year. Besides all the varieties that are raised at the East, California has a virtual monopoly of the apricot, olive, prune, nectarine, and raisin grape. The enormous yield of the orchards outran the capacity of drying and canning establishments, and has led within the last five years to the shipping of green fruit to the East by the car-load in fast trains. What this business has developed into may be seen from the fact that, in 1889, there were shipped East by rail 50,000,000 pounds of green deciduous fruit. Of this amount Chicago took nearly one-half. Besides this, 40,000,000 pounds of fruit were canned and 50,000,000 pounds dried, while the raisin pack was 20,000,000 pounds. To this must be added the shipment of 14,784,000 pounds of citrus fruits from the southern counties.

The increase in the canned-goods trade is remarkable. The pack for 1889 was 1,300,000 cases, and the shipments were 35,000,000 pounds. The pack for 1887 was 772,500 cases (of two dozen cans) with 55,000 cases of pie-fruits and jams, and 300,000 cases of tomatoes. This made a total of 1,127,500 cases, or an increase of 200,000 cases over 1886. The growth of the dried-fruit trade is equally great. The output for 1886 was 5,590,000 pounds; in 1887 it reached 10,105,000, while in 1889 it advanced to 33,381,000 pounds. This did not include raisins, in which the most remarkable progress has been made. The raisin pack for 1881 was only 90,000 boxes. The increase since then is as follows: 1882, 115,000 boxes; 1883, 125,000; 1884, 175,000; 1885, 475,000; 1886, 703,000; 1887, 800,000; 1888, 1,250,000; 1889, 1,400,000. At $2 per box last year's output represents $2,800,000. The acreage in raisin grapes is increasing as rapidly as that of oranges. Fresno alone planted 11,000 acres to vines this year.

The prune ranks next to the raisin n development within the last few years. When it was shown that from $150 to $300 could be cleared on an acre of bearing prune trees, thousands of acres were set out to prunes and the growth of the product has been enormous, reaching as high as 18,000,000 pounds in 1889. The shipment of vegetables to the East has been greatly stimulated by fast trains, and in a short time the vegetable trains will run through to Chicago in four days.

WINE AND BRANDY.

The wine crop of California will soon be of greater value than her wheat crop. The state has now over 250,000 acres of vineyard, three-quarters of which is in full bearing. The estimated yield for 1889 was 14,000,000 gallons, and 1,500,000 gallons of brandy. Napa county led with 2,700,000 gallons. Every year sees an improvement in the character of the wine. It has been demonstrated that Napa, Sonoma, and several of the counties bordering on San Francisco bay, can produce clarets and white wines equal to the best French and Rhine wines. Wine exports by sea and rail for 1889 were 8,000,000 gallons. The chief difficulty of the wine-grower has been to keep his wine until it acquired the proper age. A scheme to secure this is the establishment of great wine-cellars, where advances will be made on wine received for storage. Much of the foot-hill land that has been regarded as worthless is found to be especially adapted to choice wine grapes, and the wine industry soon promises to lead all others in California in value and importance.

WOOL.

Though there has been a falling-off of about thirty per cent. in the wool product of the state during the last few years, California still ranks among the leading wool-producing states. The reduction is due mainly to the rapid settlement of the state, and the consequent loss of the great ranges formerly utilized by the sheep-grower. To counterbalance this, however, the wool has been much cleaner, and the importation of thoroughbred stock has greatly improved the quality. The total production of California for 1889 was 34,008,370 pounds; total shipments, 33,444,401 pounds, valued at $5,500,000. The wool product of the state since 1854 was as follows:

| Year. | Pounds. | Year. | Pounds. | Year. | Pounds. | Year. | Pounds. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1854 | 175,000 | 1863 | 6,268,480 | 1872 | 24,255,468 | 1881 | 45,076,639 |
| 1855 | 300,000 | 1864 | 7,923,670 | 1873 | 32,155,169 | 1882 | 40,527,119 |
| 1856 | 600,000 | 1865 | 8,949,931 | 1874 | 39,356,781 | 1883 | 40,848,690 |
| 1857 | 1,100,000 | 1866 | 8,532,047 | 1875 | 43,532,223 | 1884 | 37,415,330 |
| 1858 | 1,428,000 | 1867 | 10,238,600 | 1876 | 56,550,970 | 1885 | 36,561,390 |
| 1859 | 2,378,000 | 1868 | 14,232,657 | 1877 | 53,110,742 | 1886 | 38,509,160 |
| 1860 | 3,055,325 | 1869 | 15,413,970 | 1878 | 40,862,091 | 1887 | 31,564,231 |
| 1861 | 3,721,998 | 1870 | 20,072,660 | 1879 | 46.303,360 | 1888 | 32,569,972 |
| 1862 | 5,990,300 | 1871 | 22,187,188 | 1880 | 46,074,154 | 1889 | 34,008,370 |

STOCK-GROWING.

The report of the State Board of Equalization for 1888 gives the latest complete record of stock-growing in the state. In cattle and sheep there has been a falling-off since the census of 1880, but the decline is more than compensated by the great improvement in the quality of the breeds. The cutting up of great ranches into small farms, and the fencing in of ranges, once common property of the stock-grower, have driven stockmen to the mountain counties and to the neighboring states and territories. The number, kind, and value of the chief live-stock of the state for 1888 are as follows: Horses, thoroughbred 1264, value $539,900; graded 87,406, value $3,997,089; American 122.773, value $8,158,091; common 70,792, value $2,470,153; colts 84,482, value $2,130,783. Cattle, beef 14,882, value $351,836; stock 517,165, value $7,398,446; calves 186,682, value $1,310,753; cows, thoroughbred 2,549, value $164,559; American 134,088, value $3,102,886; graded 61,142, value $1,428,109; common 52,542, value $1,131,411; oxen 3,141, value $110,896. Hogs, 244,620, value $644,280. Mules, 36,589, value $2,406,198. Sheep, imported 4,993, value $33,465; graded 314,868, value $602,651; common 2,335,269, value $3,473,578.

MINING INTERESTS.

Although mining no longer holds the first place among California industries, it is still a source of wealth in many of the mountain counties. For a number of years the industry has languished, but last year saw the development of many new quartz mines and the introduction of impoved processes for working low-grade ores. Large and expensive quartz-mills will be found in Amador, Nevada, Plumas, Sierra, Shasta, Trinity, Butte, Calaveras, Tuolumne, El Dorado, Placer, Fresno and several other counties. Three-fourths of the bullion product of the state comes from these quartz mines, hydraulic mining having been suppressed by law, owing to the damage that it caused by the deposit of debris on the agricultural lands of great valleys. The yield of gold and silver for 1889 was $16,000,000. California is thus outranked only by Colorado, Montana and Idaho as a producer of the precious metals.

Of other minerals the state produces antimony, borax, coal, gypsum, chromium, iron, magnesia, salt, soda, quicksilver and marble. The most valuable of these is quicksilver, which is mined mainly at the New Almaden mine. The product in 1889 was 26,000 flasks, of which the New Almaden furnished 13,000. This was a poor year, as the average annual output for eight years was 45,000 flasks. The product for 1881 was 60,851 flasks.

LUMBER TRADE.

One of the important Pacific Coast industries is the lumber trade. San Francisco is the great market, and its chief supplies are drawn from Mendocino, Humboldt, Del Norte and Santa Cruz counties, although much fine lumber comes from the Puget Sound and British Columbia mills. Pine and redwood are the leading varieties used for lumber. The redwood belt of California, extending along the coast in Santa Cruz, Sonoma, Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte counties, is extensive, and the yearly output of the mills is very large. The value of the redwood is being appreciated more every year for the interior finish of houses, as it is easily worked, and when polished with oil or shellac it takes on the tint of fine mahogany. The roots and stumps of the redwood are extensively used in cabinet work. The California sugar pine is equal to the best southern pine. The output of Washington and Oregon mills was 1,400,000,000 feet; California 450,000,000 feet; total, 1,930,000,000 feet in 1889. The receipts of pine and redwood lumber and of shingles and ties at San Francisco for 1889 were as follows: Pine, 311,455,470 ft.; redwood, 164,567,498 ft.; shingles, 113,430,500 M.; railroad ties, 762,066.

MANUFACTURES.

Most of the manufactures in California are centered in San Francisco and its immediate vicinity, although the last few years have seen a great development of manufacturing in the southern cities. The state is noted for its manufacture of heavy mining machinery, in which it leads the world. The following are the leading manufactories in San Francisco, their number, the number of employees, and the value of their product for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889.

| Factories. | No | Employees | Product, 1889. |
| Artificial Stone | 20 | 140 | $700,000 |

In wool manufactures the business of 1889 represented about $5,600,000, and over $500,000 was paid in wages. The principal stuffs manufactured are blankets, cassimeres, shawls, cloth, beavers, ladies' dress-goods and flannels. These articles are conceded to be equal to the best imported, while the blankets have gained a world-wide reputation. The imports of woolen goods have fallen off. Nearly all the wool used in California mills is of home production.

In sugar, California ranks high as a refining center. The raw sugar, mainly from the Sandwich Islands and Manila, used last year in the two refineries was 91,000,000 pounds, and the product was 60,000,000 pounds white sugar, 25,000,000 pounds yellow sugar, and 500,000 gallons syrup. The exports were 113,975,747 pounds. A large beet-sugar factory has been built at Watsonville, Santa Cruz county, and this industry promises soon to be of large proportions, as in many parts of the state the sugar-beet yields large crops. The make of beet sugar last year was 5,170,000 pounds, against 4,280,000 pounds for 1888. In cigars, boots and shoes, clothing, furniture, fruit-canning and preserving there has been a great advance in the last five years. The cigars manufactured last year amounted to 162,600,000, while 55,000,000 cigarettes were turned out.

COMMERCE.

The commerce of California centers mainly in San Francisco, although San Diego and Los Angeles have become important shipping points. The state exports yearly over $120,000,000 of her products, and her foreign imports in 1889 amounted to $41,606,700. The total receipts of the custom-house at San Francisco for 1887 were $7,627,204, although two-thirds of all merchandise imported comes in free of duty. No duty is collected on Hawaiian sugar and rice, tea and silk from China and Japan, and coffee from Central America. The leading foreign imports in 1887 were: Merchandise, $41,781,022; treasure, $8,587,039. The leading exports for 1889 were as follows: Merchandise, $41,100,523; of this wheat formed 13,480,448 centals, value $19,880,626; flour, 1,096,933 barrels, value $4,650,321; barley, 928,299 bushels, value $1,031,181; wine, 3,703,691 gallons, value $1,557,020. The shipments by rail were equally heavy. The Southern Pacific Company carried in 1889, 467,394,920 lbs., of which canned goods formed 34,293,000 lbs.; vegetables, 50,000,000 lbs.; green deciduous fruits, 50,000,000 lbs.; oranges, 14,784,000 lbs.; raisins, 16,199,200 lbs.; dried fruits, 33,227,600 lbs.

Salmon canning is an important industry, which centers in San Francisco, as nearly the entire pack of California, Oregon, British Columbia and Alaska is handled here. The exports for 1889 were 472,295 cases, valued at $2,592,970.

The revenue collections in San Francisco for 1889 were $1,660,479.

The bank clearings at San Francisco for 1889 were $843,386,150. There were 219 banks reported July 1, 1889, a net gain of 17 during the year; 28 are savings, 117 commercial, 5 branches of foreign banks, 34 private and 35 national. The total resources, etc., for the last three years are shown in this table:

| | 169 Banks, July 1, 1877. | 201 Banks, July 1, 1888. | 219 Banks, July 1, 1889. |

| Resources | $218,289,889 | $236,297,226 | $246,511,972 |
| Paid up Capital | 45,056,780 | 55,983,873 | 54,854,071 |

RAILROAD DEVELOPMENT.

There were only a few local lines of railroad in California when, in 1862, Leland Stanford, Charles Crocker, Mark Hopkins and C. P. Huntington formed the Central Pacific Railroad Co., with the bold plan of constructing a transcontinental railroad to cross the Sierra Nevada and meet the Union Pacific. Railroad experts, as well as financiers and the general public, scouted the idea of building a road over the Sierra, and no one would advance any money to aid the project. The founders invested their private fortunes in the enterprise, and by the aid of the government succeeded in carrying on and completing the work. What trials they endured, what difficulties they overcame, may be found in Creed Haymond's eloquent argument before the Senate Committee on the Pacific Railroads, delivered in 1888. The road was built during the civil war, and the last spike was driven, with imposing ceremonies, on May 9, 1869. The main line of the Central Pacific extended from San Francisco to Ogden, 871 miles. Its branch lines were few and trifling. The success of the enterprise was immediate, and far surpassed even the most sanguine expectations of its founders. The shortest time in which the journey between San Francisco and New York could be made, prior to the completion of the railroad, was three weeks. This was by way of the Pacific Mail steamers and the Panama Railroad. The opening of the through overland railroad line cut this time down to one week, and it has since been reduced to five days. The Central Pacific Company from the outset has devoted itself to the development of California. Its royal land grant was divided up and sold to settlers, the greater part of the land along the line of the road being sold for $2.50 an acre—land which in many cases is now worth $200 per acre. By 1872 it carried 55,685 through overland passengers, of whom 34,040 were brought westward. The rapid expansion of business induced the building of a branch line of railroad to Monterey, 120 miles from San Francisco, and an important road down through the heart of the San Joaquin valley, which afforded a market for the enormous crops of wheat grown in this granary of the state. By 1880 the pressure of business on the central line was so great that it was decided to build a southern line, that would afford relief to the main passenger road. Thus the Southern Pacific was constructed. It was built with unparalleled rapidity, and has proved to be the great traffic highway over which the lion's share of all overland freights are carried. The latest important extension of the system is the completion of the California and Oregon railroad, which furnishes through connection between San Francisco and Portland, Or. This road presented many engineering difficulties, and portions of it were more costly even than the work over the Sierra. The opening of this road gave the Southern Pacific one continuous line of rail from Portland, Or., to New Orleans, a distance of 5,000 miles—the longest line under one management in this country. In this state the company has 2,242 miles of road, and it pays taxes on an assessed valuation of $48,051,100, which does not include $610,930 of rolling-stock. It is constantly building new lines, the new mileage of 1887 amounting to 251 miles.

All its main, branch and leased lines have been incorporated under the general title of the Southern Pacific Company, and it operated in 1889 6,097.43 miles of road, of which 4,310.11 belonged to the Pacific system, and 1,742.36 to the Atlantic system. The increase of new road was 120½ miles. Its gross earnings for 1889 were $46,343,207.86; operating expenses, $30,304,365.75; gross surplus, $16,583,487.92, of which $15,251,736.56 was consumed in interest on bonded debt, rentals and other payments, leaving net income of $1,333,585.14. The other important railroad line in the state is the Santa Fe system, which has a line from the Southern Pacific to San Diego, several branch lines in Southern California, and the line from the Needles to Mojave. It is forced to run over the Southern Pacific road to enter San Francisco.

IMMIGRATION.

The careful accounts kept by the Southern Pacific Company for fifteen years make it easy to compute the gain by immigration during these years. Perhaps the best way to show the net gain of the state in this period is by the following table of overland travel:

| Year. | Eastward. | Westward. | Year. | Eastward. | Westward. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1872 | 21,645 | 34,040 | 1884 | 37,559 | 58,428 |
| 1873 | 23,486 | 44,370 | 1885 | 37,293 | 59,772 |
| 1874 | 24,782 | 55,509 | 1886 | 66,312 | 92,246 |
| 1875 | 30,422 | 74,919 | 1887 | 60,499 | 98,290 |
| 1876 | 37,853 | 60,565 | 1888 | 50,000 | 89,000 |
| 1877 | 31,247 | 47,435 | 1889 | 70,681 | 93,969 |
| 1878 | 25,928 | 37,556 | Totals | 681,555 | 1,093,087 |
| 1879 | 25,268 | 36,288 | | | |
| 1880 | 30,367 | 34,280 | Totals eastward | | 681,555 |
| 1881 | 30,831 | 47,107 | | | |
| 1882 | 37,113 | 58,113 | Excess of travel to California | | 411,532 |
| 1883 | 40,107 | 73,700 | | | |

An analysis of these figures shows that in the earlier part of this period the year 1875 was the great boom year, when the immigration reached 74,919. This was the period of great material development and rampant speculation. When the collapse came there was reaction for six years, when once more the tide turned. The increase since then has been very great, jumping in the last two years to tremendous figures, that taxed the carrying capacity of all the railroads. To the 98,290 brought by the Southern Pacific in 1887 must be added 56,016 brought over the Atchison line, the great majority of whom came into Southern California. In fact, the rush into Los Angeles, San Diego and othern southern counties during 1886 and 1887 was phenomenal. It led to the rapid settlement of scores of new towns. A few thousand also came by the Northern Pacific and the Pacific Mail, so that the total immigration for 1887 was not less than 160,000, of whom fully 100,000 remained in the state. The arrivals by sea in 1889 were estimated at 13,255; departures, 15,956, decrease 2,701. The net increase by rail on all lines was 30,587.

EDUCATIONAL ADVANTAGES.

When the first constitution of the state was draughted, the pioneers laid the foundation of one of the best public-school systems in the country. For school purposes the 16th and 36th sections of each township were set aside, and in this way a large permanent school fund has been established. Every county is divided into school districts, and wherever there are fifteen children of school age a district may be formed. Graded schools have been established in every town, and grammar and high schools in the cities. With a high standard of requirement for teachers and good salaries, the result has been the formation of a fine system.

Besides the regular public schools the state supports the University of California at Berkeley, well equipped in all departments, and with unusually fine horticultural, agricultural and mining schools; three normal schools; the Lick Observatory at Mt. Hamilton, on which over $750,000 has been spent in apparatus and equipment, and which is under the control of the State University regents.

The Leland Stanford Jr. University, now building at Palo Alto, in the Santa Clara valley, has an endowment of $15,000,000, and is to be specially devoted to practical training in all branches of education. Senator Stanford, who founded this institution as a memorial of his only son, has shaped the lines even broader than Ezra Cornell did those of the Cornell University. Technical training will be given in many handicrafts, and special provision will be made for aiding poor but deserving scholars. Adjoining the university is the fine ranch, which will be devoted to experiments in agriculture and fruit-growing. The institution is expected to open this fall. Besides these there are at least a score of incorporated colleges and seminaries for both sexes. The census of 1880 gave 3,036 public school buildings in California, with an average daily attendance of 106,179 pupils, taught by 3,536 teachers, whose salaries amounted to $2,271,219. It is estimated that there are 4,000 school buildings, with an average attendance of 132,000 school children, 4,938 teachers, drawing $3,083,027 in salaries. The census children in 1888 numbered 368,703. San Francisco alone since 1852 has spent $19,312,672 on her schools, and the value of school property there is now $3,184,575. California pays the highest salaries to school teachers, and makes the most liberal school appropriation of any state in the Union. In 1884, an amendment to the state constitution was passed, providing for the preparation of a series of state text-books. Several of the series have been completed, but the success of the experiment is still in doubt.

LAND BOOMS AND DEVELOPMENT.

From 1884 to 1888 there was a great increase in land speculation, especially in the southern counties. Development went hand in hand with speculation, however, and the result was a growth which beggared most of the booms in Kansas and Minnesota. The completion of the Southern Pacific Railroad to New Orleans first brought Los Angeles into direct contact with the East. The colony system had proved a success about Los Angeles, and when immigrants began to pour in over the new road new colonies were started. In this way more than a score of charming suburban towns were built up around Los Angeles. Most of the immigrants were wealthy people who wanted homes free from the rigors of an Eastern winter. They spent money freely in improvements, and induced their friends to come out and settle. Land rose enormously in value. In 1885 good orange land anywhere about Los Angeles could be bought for $100 an acre. Within a year it had risen to $500 an acre, and in 1887 it commanded readily from $1,000 to $1,500 an acre. Los Angeles suddenly leaped from a town to a large city. In the summer of 1887 the boom collapsed, and there was a great shrinkage in value and sudden end of the wild speculation. Depression naturally followed for several months, but the people turned their attention from gambling in corner lots to development of their resources, and the result has been a great gain during the last six months in all the southern cities. In the northern and central parts of the state there has been no such boom as in the south, but the growth has been rapid and steady. Nearly all the good government and railroad land that is accessible has been secured, and the rush of settlers into some counties has been very great. The features that are most promising are the dividing up of the great ranches and their sale in small tracts of from twenty to one hundred acres to actual settlers, and the conversion of wheat fields into orchards and vineyards.

FUTURE OF CALIFORNIA.

Everything points to a growth and development of the state in the next decade which will surpass that of the last ten years. Even old settlers have just begun to discover the sources of wealth that were ignored by them for so many years. Thus ten years ago the raisin industry cut no figure in the state's products, the output being only 32,000 boxes. In 1887 this had risen to 800,000 boxes, while last year it leaped to 1,400,000 boxes. At this rate California, before the twentieth century, will be able to supply the raisin demand of the country. In wine the increase has not been so marked; but the growth is rapid, and California wine is slowly making its way into general consumption at the East. With fast trains and refrigerator cars California is also able to supply the East with fresh fruits and vegetables a full month earlier than they can be brought from other places. This, with her canned goods furnishes a source of revenue that in a few years will outstrip every other product in value.

In making any estimate of the future growth of California, the size of the state and the endless variety of its resources must be taken into consideration. It has the virtual monopoly of a dozen products which can be grown in no other state of the Union with equal success and profit; it has a large region that possesses a climate peculiarly adapted to those afflicted with lung complaints, and it is upon the permanent demand for such sanitaria that the prosperity of Southern California is founded. In agriculture, lumbering, stock-raising, manufactures, and all the other industries that add their millions to the growing wealth of the state, the coming years will be sure to witness a great increase. All that the state needs is industrious settlers, with capital sufficient to lift them above the grade of day-laborers, and with the ambition to found homes for themselves and their children. To such settlers no state in the Union offers today so many advantages as California in cheap and fertile lands, varied products, good markets, the best educational and social facilities, and a climate so equable that the farmer and the artisan may work the whole year round in the open air.

During the last two years the growth in the colony system has been very great, and the efforts of all the immigration agencies has been to get settlers who have sufficient capital to plant orchards or vineyards and maintain themselves until these come into bearing. California is not a good place for the man without capital and with no skilled trade. The farm laborer is not employed the year round, as at the East. He gets good wages in California during harvest and fruit seasons, but after that there is a heavy reduction in the working force until the next year. Men with two or three thousand dollars and families, however, will find the fruit districts of California the best place in the world to make a home. Within three years vines and fruit-trees begin to bear well, and the labor of children can be utilized in caring for the trees, or especially in picking grapes and fruit. In the last few months several colonies have come from abroad to find their lands planted to grapes and fruits and houses erected. One of the largest of these is a Dutch colony near Merced, all the members of which have means to develop their forty-acre tracts. The returns from well-applied labor are so abundant in California that no man, who has means to bring an orchard or vineyard into bearing, ought to fail of success. Ten acres in oranges or vines in any of the good fruit districts will yield an income, clear of all expenses, of from $1,500 to $2,000. Such returns cannot be secured even from the best orange lands of Florida or the peach orchards of Delaware.

COUNTIES OF CALIFORNIA.

ALAMEDA.

Alameda county is situated on the eastern shore of San Francisco bay, six miles from San Francisco. It has an area of 737 square miles. In wealth and population it ranks third of the counties. Its population, according to the census of 1880, was 69,976, but it is now estimated at 120,000. Oakland, the county seat, is noted for its handsome streets and gardens, and its many churches and schools. It furnishes suburban homes for many San Franciscans, as it is connected with the metropolis by two lines of ferries. Other large towns are Alameda, Berkeley the seat of the State University, and Livermore. The county consists mainly of gently rolling foot-hill land, admirably adapted to fruit and the vine. Its wheat fields are rapidly being converted into orchards and vineyards. Oakland is one of the great shipping points for green fruit to the East, as well as the seat of large manufactures. Its growth in two years has been marvelous, and it now has 60,000 people. The county produces all kinds of fruit and garden produce, wheat, barley, hay and sugar-beets. Its assessed valuation in 1889 was $71,986,282.

ALPINE.

Alpine county is one of the extreme eastern counties, bordering on Nevada, and in the heart of the Sierra. It contains 882 square miles, but its cultivated lands comprise less than 1,000 acres. Population, according to the census of 1880, was 539. The surface is broken by high mountains, amid which are many beautiful valleys. The western part is extremely wild, and is used mainly for pasture of cattle and sheep. Markleeville, the county seat, is on the Carson river, and is the center of a good mining country. Vast forests of fir, tamarack, pine and spruce form the chief wealth. Lumbering, dairying and mining are the main pursuits. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $282,835.

AMADOR.

Amador county is one of the foot-hill counties, in the eastern part of the state, stretching from Alpine on the east to Sacramento and San Joaquin on the west; its area is 565 square miles, and its population estimated at 18,000. The census of 1880 gave it 11,384. Jackson is the county seat—a city of 2,500 people. The surface of the county is rugged, and mining has always been the chief industry. For many years the county ranked high for mineral production, and the gold output now averages $2,000,000 yearly. Much attention has been devoted lately to agriculture and fruit-growing, the soil being especially adapted to all kinds of fruit. There has been a large increase in acreage of fruit trees and vines within two years. Experiment has shown that soil and climate are favorable to the raisin grape. The assessed valuation for 1889 was $4,281,699.

BUTTE.

Butte county lies on the east side of the great Sacramento valley, between the Feather and Sacramento rivers; it has an area of 1,765 square miles, and a population of 30,000; the census of 1880 gave a population of 18,384. Chico, the chief city, lies in the center of a rich country, and is noted for its many handsome residences, and the Rancho Chico of General Bidwell, the greatest fruit farm in the state. It is also the seat of the new Normal School for northern California. Oroville, the county seat, is the center of a rapidly growing fruit section, where the orange grows to perfection. About one-third of the county is rich alluvial river bottoms, devoted to wheat and barley, but many of these fields, as well as the foot-hills, are being converted into orchards and vineyards. Grain-growing is still the leading source of wealth, but within three years fruit-raising has taken great strides, and in 1886 there were no less than 115,873 fruit trees. Last year many thousand orange trees were planted around Oroville. Mining and stock-raising are also profitable industries. The assessed valuation for 1889 was $19,894,614.

CALAVERAS.

Calaveras, a foot-hill county, just south of Amador and east of San Joaquin, has an area of 971 square miles, and an estimated population of 12,125; the census of 1880 gave the population as 9,094. The county seat is San Andreas, the center of a rich mining region. Other towns are Milton, Copperopolis, Murphys and Angels. Calaveras is pre-eminently a mining county, and its placers were among the richest in California in early days. Now quartz-mining is extensively carried on. Besides gold, there are rich deposits of copper, iron, coal and marble, all of which will repay working when the cost of transportation is reduced. The county is also rich in timber, the yearly product being 5,000,000 feet of fine lumber and 2,000,000 shingles. Like the other old mining counties, fruit-growing and agriculture are gaining ground every year. Many of the choicest fruits flourish well in these foot-hill valleys. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $4,315,361.

COLUSA.

Colusa county lies in the heart of the great Sacramento valley; it stretches from the river on the east to the Coast range on the west, and is the banner wheat county of California or of the United States. Its area is 2,300 square miles, mainly rich alluvial land. Its population is estimated at 20,000; the census of 1880 gives 13,118. Colusa, the county seat, is a city of 2,500 people, the center of immense grain ranches. Other towns are Willows, noted for the beauty of its homes, Orland, Germantown, Maxwell and Arbuckle. The valley land is so rich that the county has a record in many years of 10,000,000 bushels of wheat. The land was formerly held in great ranches, the most famous of which is the Glenn ranch, that follows the Sacramento for seventeen miles; but many of these are now being cut up, and orchards are taking the place of grain fields. In the western part stock-raising and lumbering are pursued. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $24,500,000.

CONTRA COSTA.

Contra Costa lies across the bay from San Francisco, and adjoins Alameda, its northern boundary being the San Joaquin river and the bays that form the mouth of the Sacramento. Its area is 734 square miles, of which fully one-half is cultivated. Its population is estimated at 17,500; the census of 1880 gives 12,525. The county seat, Martinez, is on the line of the Central Pacific, and looks over the beautiful Suisun bay. Other growing towns are Antioch, Brentwood, Byron Springs and Port Costa, the seat of the greatest wheat warehouses in California. The county is divided by the Coast range, the great feature of which is Mt. Diablo, the highest point of the range, 3,896 feet above sea level. Agriculture is the chief pursuit, and wheat the main product, although fruit and garden vegetables are rapidly nearing grain in value. Soil and climate are well adapted to all fruits and vines, while the olive flourishes on the hill lands, once regarded as fit for nothing but the wild oat. All along the shore at many points are large factories, while at the docks at Port Costa is loaded eighty per cent. of the wheat ships. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $15,195,592.

DEL NORTE.

Del Norte county is the extreme northwest corner of the state, with the Pacific on the west and Oregon on the northern boundary; its area is 1,546 square miles. The estimated population in 1889 was 3,500; census of 1880 gave 2,584. Crescent City, the county seat, is on the coast, and near by are valuable mines of gold-bearing black sand. Other important towns are Smith River, Altaville, Gasquet and Happy Camp. The surface of the county is broken by mountains, and only about one-third is capable of cultivation. The mountains, however, are covered by some of the finest redwood, pine, spruce and fir in the state. Lumbering, dairying and mining are leading industries. When the Klamath Indian reservation is thrown open, a great stimulus will be given to the lumbering interest in the heavily timbered country along the river banks. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $1,925,031.

EL DORADO.

El Dorado county, one of the oldest and richest of the foot-hill mining counties, extends from Sacramento county on the west to the state line of Nevada on the east. Its area is 1,890 square miles, and its population, given by the census of 1880 as 10,683, is now estimated at 12,000. Placerville, the county seat, is in the center of a once rich mining country, but now devoted to almost equally profitable fruit-growing and agriculture; it once ranked among the leading cities of California. Coloma, once the county seat, is celebrated as the place where gold was first discovered, in Sutter's mill-race. The country rises by gradual ascent from the Sacramento valley region to the Sierra, crowned by snow the year round. All the western part, consisting of fertile plains and foot-hills, is especially adapted to fruit, and within five years a great area has been planted to the choicest varieties. Besides agriculture and fruit-growing, for which the system of mining ditches furnishes ample irrigation when required, mining is still carried on extensively. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $3,879,887.

FRESNO.

Fresno county lies midway in the great San Joaquin valley, between Merced and Mariposa on the north and Tulare on the south. It is the third largest county in the state, having an area of 8,093 square miles. Its population, given by the 1880 census as 9,478, has increased enormously within the last five years, and is now estimated at 33,000, while the yearly increase is fully 5,000. Fresno, the county seat, is in the geographical center, and is the seat of the greatest raisin-producing section in the United States. The new acreage planted to raisin grapes this season is 10,000 acres, making the total acreage 36,000. Other large towns are Madera, Huron, Kingsburg and Selma. Two-thirds of the county is level as a barn floor, with soil of inexhaustible fertility. Here an elaborate system of irrigating canals has converted thousands of acres into one great vineyard of raisin grapes. While other fruits are less profitable than the grape, they are largely cultivated for drying and canning. The irrigating canals are capable of watering one thousand square miles, and this capacity can be increased. Besides all the ordinary agricultural products, Fresno produces a large amount of alfalfa, honey, sorghum, sweet potatoes and Egyptian corn. In the eastern part of the county are some of the loftiest peaks of the high Sierra, rising more than 14,000 feet above sea-level. The mountain slopes are clothed with the finest growth of redwood and sugar pine. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $35,387,173.

HUMBOLDT.

Humboldt county lies along the Pacific coast, directly south of Del Norte. Its area is 4,093 square miles, and its population, given by the census of 1880 as 15,512, is now 30,000. Eureka, the county seat, is on Humboldt bay, the best harbor between San Francisco and Puget Sound, and has a population of 8,000. Other towns are Arcata, Trinidad, Rohnerville and Ferndale. The surface of Humboldt is extremely rugged, being broken by many spurs of the Coast range, and it has several navigable streams, chief of which are the Klamath and Trinity rivers. More than 450,000 acres are covered with the heaviest growth of redwood in the state, while there are 200,000 acres of pine, cedar, spruce and fir. The timber yet uncut amounts to more than the entire timber reserve of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Naturally lumbering is the chief industry. Lumber exports for 1887 were 104,519,726 feet. Only about 30,000 acres are under cultivation, but Humboldt grain, potatoes and fruit are well known for superior quality. Mining is extensively carried on in the northern part, and ship-building and stock-raising are sources of wealth. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $18,440,872.

INYO.

Inyo county is situated at the extreme east of the state, with the Sierra for a western boundary, has an area of 10,156 square miles, the greater part being mountainous land. It is shut off from the rest of the state by the enormous mountain chain, of which the highest peak is Mt. Whitney, 14,887 feet above sea-level. Its population, given by the 1880 census as 2,928, has now increased to about 5,000. Independence, the county seat, is in the midst of a rich mining country. Only a few thousand acres in Owens valley are under cultivation, but large irrigating projects are now under way, which will convert the sage-brush desert into fertile fields. Mining has always been the chief source of wealth, but large deposits of borax and soda are worked in Death valley, and a vast quarry of the purest marble. The Carson and Colorado Railroad now furnishes transportation, which was formerly lacking. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $1,548,695.

KERN.

Kern county lies at the southern end of the San Joaquin valley, and has Tulare to the north and Los Angeles and Ventura to the south. Its area is about 8,100 square miles, and its population, put at 5,601 by the census of 1880, now numbers 13,000. Bakersfield, the county seat, is in the Kern valley, and has many fine public buildings. About one-third of the county is rich agricultural land, capable of raising any crop with irrigation, that is furnished by ditches or artesian wells. The Kern river furnishes water for a series of canals that cost not less than $5,000,000. Alfalfa is largely raised for feed, and the raising of cattle, horses, sheep and hogs forms the main industry. All agricultural products grow with tropical luxuriance, and fruit-raising is beginning to attract attention. Other industries are lumbering and quartz mining. The assessed valuation for 1889 was $10,278,996.

LAKE.

Lake county is shut in between two ridges of the Coast range, with mountains also to north and south, and with Clear lake, 25 miles long by 6 wide, Lake county bears away the palm for picturesque scenery. It is one of the central California counties, with an area of about 1,078 square miles, and a population now estimated at 10,000; census report of 1880 gives 6,596. Lakeport, the county seat, is on Clear lake, and is the center of a good trade. The country is very broken, but the valleys are extremely fertile. Large quantities of wheat, barley, oats, corn, potatoes and hops are grown, while many sheep and hogs are raised. Fruit-growing is also increasing, the county being especially adapted to the winter apple. There are also mines of quicksilver. The county has many popular tourist resorts, as it has a dozen mineral springs, famous for their waters. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $4,022,484.

LASSEN.

Lassen county is situated far to the north, adjoining the state of Nevada. It has an area of 4,750 square miles, of which fully three-quarters is mountainous. Its population in 1880 was returned as 3,340, but is now estimated at 5,500. The county seat is Susanville, in Honey Lake valley, at an elevation of 4,184 feet above the sea-level. Despite the high altitude the climate is not severe. The leading industries are stock-raising and lumbering. The mountain grasses are peculiarly nutritious, and large herds graze in a country so rough that it would be the despair of the cattlemen of the plains. The foot-hills are covered with valuable forests of sugar and yellow pine, cedar and fir. Fruit-growing is receiving much attention. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $2,527,449.

LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles county has a shore-line of 90 miles on the Pacific, but the greater part of the county lies inland. It is just south of Kern county, and is cut off from the north by a spur of the Sierra. It is the most famous of the southern California counties, and is in the heart of the semi-tropical belt. Its area is 4,812½ square miles, and its population, given as only 33,381 in 1880, has increased by the unexampled immigration from the East to 150,000, making it the second county in population and assessable wealth in the state. Los Angeles, the county seat, is the second city in the state, and claims 70,000 people; it covers an area of 36 square miles, but most of the houses are surrounded by large gardens. Its trade is large, as it is the natural railroad center for southern California, and is surrounded by colonies, where many wealthy people have made their homes. Large towns immediately about Los Angeles are Pasadena, Santa Ana, Orange and Tustin, while thriving colonies are Pomona and Anaheim. The whole county within a radius of twenty miles of Los Angeles has been converted into colonies and villas. Orange and grape growing, wine-making, market gardening and general agriculture form the chief industries, while the tourist business adds largely to the wealth of the county. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $84,386,319, while that of 1866 was only $37,560,880.

MARIN.

Marin county lies between the Pacific ocean and San Francisco bay; it has an extensive coast line; it is northeast from San Francisco, and is bounded to the north and east by Sonoma county. Its area is 509 square miles, and its population, given as 11,324 in the census of 1880, is now estimated at 15,000. San Rafael, the county seat, is one of the prettiest of the suburban resorts about San Francisco bay, and is the home of many rich people. It has many beautiful residences, and a large first class hotel. Other towns are Sausalito, Nicasio and Tomales, while a dozen new suburban resorts have sprung up near San Rafael and Sausalito. The county is noted for its large dairy ranches, that stretch along the shore of the Pacific, and its butter and cheese command high prices. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $11,108,657.

MARIPOSA.

Mariposa county is situated between Tuolumne and Fresno. This county is celebrated as containing the Yosemite valley and the Mariposa grove of big trees. Its area is 1,543 square miles, and its population is estimated at 6,500; the census of 1880 gives 4,339. The county seat, Mariposa, lies 45 miles from the Southern Pacific Railroad, and is reached by stages. Other towns are Hornitos, Coulterville and Cathay. The surface of the eastern half is extremely rugged and covered by heavy forests of redwood and pine. The western half consists of foothills and plains, which are immensely productive when irrigated. Mining is still the chief industry, many valuable quartz mines being worked. Lumbering, agriculture and stock-raising are profitable, and fruit-growing is receiving attention. The assessed valuation for 1889 was $1,900,000.

MENDOCINO.

Mendocino county borders on the Pacific ocean for 130 miles. This county lies just south of Humboldt, and is 100 miles north of San Francisco. Its area is 3,562 square miles, and its population, given in the census of 1880 as 12,800, is now estimated at 22,500. Ukiah, the county seat, lies in a valley of the same name, and is noted as a health resort. Other towns are Covelo, Point Arena, Westport and Mendocino city. The county is divided by mountain ridges into a number of valleys, all fertile and well watered. Extending all along the coast, and for an average width of fifteen miles, is the great redwood belt, which is second only in size and value to that of Humboldt county. The chief industries are lumbering, dairying, sheep-raising and general agriculture. The potato crop is an important source of wealth. The assessed valuation for 1889 was 11,944,865.

MERCED.

Merced county is situated in the heart of the San Joaquin valley, between Stanislaus and Fresno. This has long been known as one of the greatest wheat counties of California. Its area is 1,968 square miles, and its population, reported in 1880 by the United States census as 5,646, is now put down at 9,000. The county seat is Merced, which has many fine public buildings. Most of the land in the county is plain or foot-hill. It is watered by the San Joaquin and Merced rivers, which furnish facilities for irrigation. The county boasts of the largest irrigating ditch in this country, the Merced canal, which is 29 miles long, and terminates in a huge reservoir of 640 acres, five miles from Merced City. It will irrigate 300,000 acres, and it cost $2,500,000. Wheat and barley have long been the staple products, being grown without irrigation, but many acres have recently been planted to fruit and vines, and with irrigation these will prove far more profitable than grain. Stock-raising is also carried on in the foot-hills. The assessed valuation for 1889 was $14,000,000.

MODOC.

Modoc county lies at the far northeast corner of the state. It has an area of 4,296 square miles. The population is now about 7,000, but the census of 1880 gave it 4,399. Alturas, the county seat, lies at the meeting of the north and south forks of Pitt river, and is the center of a large trade. The surface is broken, more than half the area consisting of mountainous land, while a great tract, 100 miles by 60, in the northeastern part, is covered by the lava-beds, and is fit only for grazing. Stock raising is the chief pursuit, and large herds are driven annually out of the mountains. Dairying and lumbering also are important industries. Only lack of rail communication prevents Modoc from being a fine grain and agricultural country. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $3,000,000.

MONO.

Mono county extends along the boundary between Nevada and California, with Inyo county to the south. Its area is 2,796 square miles. The estimated population is 3,200, while the census of 1880 gives 7,499. The decrease is due to changes wrought by mining excitement, but the steady growth of the last few years is of the class that makes homes, and remains. The surface is extremely mountainous, and mining has always been the chief industry. The eastern part is composed of alkali plains, interspersed with salt-pools and volcanic remains. The lower foot-hills are covered with a heavy growth of sugar and yellow pine. Bodie, the largest town, was once the center of extraordinary rich mines. Of late these mines have been reopened, and the bullion yield last year was over a half million dollars. Cheap transportation is all that is needed to cause a general revival of mining in many long-deserted camps. Lumbering and stock-raising are also important industries. The assessed valuation for 1889 is $941,010.

MONTEREY.

Monterey county, situated on the coast south of Santa Cruz and north of San Luis Obispo, contains 3,328 square miles; its population is estimated at over 20,000, though by the census of 1880 it was placed at 11,302. Salinas city is the county seat and largest town, other places being Monterey, Castroville, Pajaro, Soledad and Gonzales. Monterey is one of the leading cereal-producing counties in the state, nearly half a million acres being annually sown to grain. Through the center of the Salinas valley runs the Salinas river, which empties into the ocean at Moss Landing, the seaport of Castroville. The Pajaro valley, a portion of which is in Santa Cruz county, is watered by the Pajaro river. Its soil is very rich, and particularly well adapted for the growth of fruits and vegetables, especially sugar-beets. The Carmel valley, in which is located the Mission of San Carlos, also contains considerable arable land. Farming, wool-growing, and stock-raising constitute the chief industries of the county. Monterey, the former capital of the state, is one of the principal watering places on the Pacific coast. It has many places of historic interest, and the scenery in the vicinity is very picturesque. About a mile east of the old town is the Hotel Del Monte, built by the Southern Pacific Company, one of the finest seaside hotels in America. Pacific Grove Retreat, near by, is also a popular summer resort. The assessed valuation of the county in 1889 was $15,536,037.

NAPA.

Napa county is in the central part of the state, with Lake county on the north and San Pablo bay on the south. It is over fifty miles long by from thirty to thirty-five miles wide, and has an area of 789 square miles. The population, according to the United States census of 1880, was 13,234, but it is now estimated at 20,000. Napa City, the county seat, is on the Napa river, in a beautiful section, and has many substantial buildings. Other important towns are St. Helena, the center of a rich wine-making district, and Calistoga, a famous health resort. The soil of Napa, largely made of volcanic remains, is peculiarly adapted to the choicest wine grapes, and the county stands at the head for the quality of its fine wines. There are now over 15,000 acres planted to wine grapes, and the yearly increase is from 500 to 1,000 acres. Of fruit-trees there are also nearly 300,000, the olive having been largely planted on the hill lands. Some of the largest wine-cellars in the state are in the neighborhood of St. Helena. The county produces one-third of all the wine made in California, and its main valley—the Napa—for a distance of thirty miles is almost one continuous vineyard. The other products are wheat, oats, barley, hay and quicksilver. It has many mineral springs, popular as health resorts. and its climate is unsurpassed for equability. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $14,970,181.

NEVADA.

Nevada county is one of diversified topography, gradually rising from the level of the upper Sacramento valley to the summit of the Sierra, on the eastern border of the state; its area is 1,125 square miles. In 1880 the population was 20,823, but it has now increased to 25,000. Nevada City, a city of about 7,000 inhabitants, is the county seat. Grass Valley, Colfax, and North San Juan are other important places. In the eastern or mountainous part of the county lumbering is the chief industry; in the central section gold-mining is prosecuted on an extensive scale, while the less elevated lands are devoted to grazing and the raising of grain and fruit. The quartz and drift mines of this county are steadily productive, though the suspension of hydraulic mining caused a period of dullness; the yield of the precious metal is now increasing, the quartz being worked with gratifying success. The many lumber-mills along the Truckee river send to market in the neighborhood of 35,000,000 feet annually. All kinds of fruit, including oranges, are grown in the county. It is a peculiarity of this county that it produces the finest Bartlett pears grown in the state, and the acreage in this fruit is very large. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $6,500,000.

ORANGE.

The southwestern part of Los Angeles county, a territory about forty miles long by twenty wide, was made into the new county of Orange last year. It is a citrus-growing district, highly cultivated, and supporting a large population, estimated at 20,000. The chief city is Santa Ana, which has grown into a place of 5,000 people, with many handsome buildings, within about seven years. The second city is Anaheim, the center of the oldest colony in Southern California. Other large and growing towns are Tustin, Garden Grove, El Modena, Westminster, Newport and San Juan Capistrano. The county has an admirable system of irrigation, and most of its land is planted to oranges, raisin grapes and other fruit. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $9,300,000.

PLACER.

Placer county is long and narrow, extending to the summit of the Sierra and running down within a few miles of the Sacramento river, embracing 1,429 square miles of valley, foot-hill and mountain lands, and possessing resources extremely varied in nature. The population, rated at 14,232 in 1880, is now about 26,000. Auburn, a thrifty town of 2,000 inhabitants, is the county seat. Rocklin, Penryn, Newcastle, Dutch Flat, Alta, Cisco and Summit are other towns and villages. All of these towns are on the line of the Central Pacific railroad, the station at Summit being 7,017 feet above the sea. The resources of Placer are extremely varied. All kinds of fruit, from apples to oranges, are shipped to all parts of the state and to the East; millions of feet of lumber are annually exported; the chief granite quarries of California are here, and the gold mines, from which at least $35,000,000 have been extracted, are still far from exhausted. As attractions for the tourist, Placer boasts of Donner Lake, Soda Springs, and Lake Tahoe. Irrigation is practiced to a considerable extent, abandoned mining-ditches being used to conduct the waters of the Bear river to the lower lands. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $10,118,060.

PLUMAS.

Plumas county is one of the chain of mountain counties, and is bounded by Shasta, Lassen, Butte and Tehama; its area is 2,656 square miles; in 1880, the population was 6,180, and is now about 7,000; Quincy is the county seat; Laporte, Meadow Valley and Taylorville are other towns. Although situated among the Sierra Nevada, containing several lofty peaks, and noted for its picturesque scenery, Plumas embraces many sheltered valleys of rich alluvial soil, and well-watered grassy meadows, supporting a prosperous agricultural community. Mining, however, as in the earlier days of California, is still the most profitable industry. The American valley and the Mountain meadows are noted for their succulent vegetation, and in dry seasons furnish a grazing-ground for stockmen from other counties. The north and middle forks of the Feather river take their rise in this county, and in winter rush in torrents to join the Sacramento. The resources of Plumas are in large measure undeveloped, yet the salubrious climate and productive soil of its elevated valleys, as well as its hidden mineral wealth, are attracting a constantly increasing tide of immigration. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $2,230,000.

SACRAMENTO.

Sacramento county—a quadrangular-shaped county, with an area of 968 square miles—is situated nearly in the geographical center of the state, of which its county seat, Sacramento, is the capital. The population was 34,390 in 1880, and is now about 47,000. Nearly the entire area of the county consists of rich valley lands, through which flow the Sacramento, American and Cosumnes rivers. The former stream, the largest in the state, is lined with extensive orchards, and the annual product of fruits is not excelled by any other county. The vineyards are constantly increasing in extent; the shipments of grain and hay are extensive. In 1889, 1,700 car-loads of green fruit were shipped east from Sacramento City. The city of Sacramento, at the junction of the Sacramento and American rivers, has a population of 35,000; contains the state capitol, an imposing structure costing over $3,000,000, the Crocker Art Gallery, the new Roman Catholic Cathedral, and the shops of the Central Pacific Railroad Co., employing about 2,000 men. The trade of Sacramento amounts to $60,000,000 a year. Folsom, where the branch State Prison is located, is famed for its granite quarries. The assessed valuation of the county in 1889 was $34,460,174.

SAN BENITO.

San Benito county was formerly a part of Monterey county, by which it is bounded on the south and west; Merced and Fresno are on the east, and Santa Clara constitutes its northern boundary; its area is 1,056 square miles. The population, which in 1880 was 5,584, is now estimated at 8,500. Hollister is the county seat, and is a flourishing town of 2,500 inhabitants. San Juan, seven miles from Hollister, is an old town, and is the site of one of the Franciscan missions. Tres Pinos is a young but enterprising village on the Southern Pacific. Between the Gabilan and Mount Diablo ranges, which inclose the county, are many thousand acres of fine farming land, watered by the San Benito river and Tres Pinos creek. Wool growing is an important industry, and the mineral products of the county have added materially to its prosperity. The famous New Idria quicksilver mines, discovered in 1852, are among the richest in the world, the estimated value of their output to date being over $8,000,000. Limestone of good quality and iron ore and antimony also exist in the Gabilan mountains. The assessed valuation of the county in 1889 was $6,272,911.

SAN BERNARDINO.

San Bernardino county lies south of Inyo, and extends from Los Angeles and Kern counties on the west to the Arizona line; it ranks first in size among the counties, and has an area of 21,172 square miles. The population by the United States census of 1880 was 7,786, but so great has been the influx of immigrants that it is now estimated to have 33,000. San Bernardino, the county seat, is an old town settled by the Mormons, which has suddenly developed, within three years, into an important city, with many costly buildings and a population of 10,000. Other important towns are Riverside, the seat of extensive orange groves and raisin vineyards, Colton, Cucamonga, Redlands. The eastern part of the county includes portions of the Mojave and Colorado desert, but thousands of acres of what was once regarded as hopelessly sterile have been reclaimed by artesian wells. The southwestern section is very fertile, and with irrigation produces all kinds of fruits, grain and vegetables. Wheat-growing, once the leading industry, has given place to orange and grape culture, and the growing of deciduous fruits and vegetables. San Bernardino produces the finest oranges in the state. Immense irrigation works have been constructed; the largest reservoir is at the head of Bear creek, and is six miles long by three-quarters of a mile wide. Other important industries are mining and lumbering. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $23,267,955 against $8,089,305 for 1886.

SAN DIEGO.

San Diego county is situated at the extreme southern end of the state, adjoining Lower California and extending from the Pacific Ocean to Arizona. Its area is 14,968 square miles.

The population, given in the United States census of 1880 as 8,618, has leaped in the last five years to 55,000. San Diego, the county seat, had no railroad connection with the outside world in 1886, but to-day it has through connection with several lines of railroad, has spent $1,500,000 in improvements, and has a population of 30,000. On Coronado beach, directly opposite San Diego, $1,000,000 has been spent on a great hotel and its grounds. Both San Diego and its suburbs have the electric light, motor railroads and all city conveniences, with a system of sewerage that insures good health. All these expenditures have been made on the strength of its advantages as a health resort, the climate being very equable and the water suitable for bathing the most of the year. Other important towns are San Jacinto, Banning and Elsinore. All fruits grow luxuriantly in the county, but the chief drawback has been lack of water. This is now being developed by artesian wells and storage reservoirs in the mountains. The leading products are citrus fruits, raisins, olives and nuts. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $29,560,918, against $9,961,282 for 1886.

SAN FRANCISCO COUNTY.

See sketch of city.

SAN JOAQUIN.

San Joaquin county is an agricultural county, bounded by Sacramento, Amador, Calaveras, Stanislaus, Alameda, and Contra Costa. Its area is 1,370 square miles. In 1880 the population was 24,349. It is now 35,000. The San Joaquin, Mokelumne and Calaveras rivers flow through the county, and as they near their outlets, form a vast delta, portions of which have been reclaimed, and found to be extremely productive. Stockton, near the head of tide-water on the San Joaquin river, the county seat, is one of the leading cities of California, its manufacturing interests being very large. Lodi, Woodbridge, Lockeford, Farmington and Lathrop are all lively towns. The county is noted for the fertility of its soil, which produces all kinds of crops, and being so well watered seldom suffers from drought. Wheat is the chief product; the yearly shipments of this cereal running up into the millions of bushels. Fruit is also grown and sent to market in considerable quantities. The assessed valuation of the county in 1889 was 38,702,606.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.

San Luis Obispo county lies between the Pacific ocean and the Coast range, with Monterey on the north and Santa Barbara on the south. This county embraces 3,578 square miles, and has an estimated population of 20,000, though in 1880 it was given at 9,142. San Luis Obispo is the county seat and business center of the county, the principal towns being San Simeon, Cambria, Avila, Paso Robles, Templeton, Arroyo Grande and San Miguel. Stock-raising, dairying, farming and horticulture are conducted extensively, and the honey product is an important factor in the county's wealth. Port Harford is the principal seaport, though there are five shipping points along the eighty miles of coast. The fertile interior valleys are drained by the Salinas river and its tributaries; the soil is adobe mixed with sandy loam, and irrigation is not needed. Gypsum is found in large quantities, and other minerals are known to exist. The recent extension of the Southern Pacific has given the interior of this county a new impetus, and its population is rapidly increasing. The most valuable sulphur springs in the state are located at Paso Robles, which is celebrated as a great health resort. When the Southern Pacific coast line is completed from Santa Barbara, Paso Robles will be one of the main stopping-places on this tourist line, Santa Barbara and Monterey being the other two. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $15,139,117.

SAN MATEO.

San Mateo county adjoins San Francisco on the south. It is bounded on the west by the Pacific ocean, on the south by Santa Cruz, and on the east by San Francisco bay and Santa Clara county. Its area is 459 square miles. Redwood City is the county seat. Belmont, Menlo Park, Halfmoon Bay, San Mateo, San Bruno, Millbrae, La Honda, and Pescadero are the other towns best known. The population, now estimated at 13,000, was 8,669 in 1880. Dairying, farming, and lumbering are the principal industries of the county. Pescadero, situated on the ocean, 56 miles south of San Francisco, annually ships many millions of shingles and lumber cut from adjoining redwood forests; it also is the center of the butter and cheese industry. Most of the milk supplied to the metropolis comes from dairy farms in the neighborhood of San Bruno, Millbrae, and San Mateo. At Palo Alto, near San Mateo, is located the famous stock farm of Senator Leland Stanford, and here are being erected the buildings of the Leland Stanford Jr. University, destined to be one of the leading educational institutions of the world. The endowment consists of $12,000,000, and the aim of the founder is to furnish mental, moral, and manual training. Liberal scholarships will be provided, and needy students will be aided. In the university town board will be provided at low rates. In connection with the university will be an experimental farm and shops for learning the trades. At Belmont, and other places along the Southern Pacific Railroad, are many splendid suburban residences of San Francisco millionaires. In 1889 the assessed valuation of the county was $13,888,887.

SANTA BARBARA.

Santa Barbara county fronts on the Pacific ocean, and is bounded on the north by San Luis Obispo, on the east by Ventura, and on the south by Santa Barbara channel, flowing between the mainland and the islands of Santa Cruz, San Miguel, and Santa Rosa. It contains 2,265 square miles, and an estimated population of 20,000, which has increased from 9,513 in 1880. Santa Barbara, the county seat, famous for the salubrity of its climate, has rapidly grown in business importance since its connection with the railroad system of the state. It is a city of 8,000 inhabitants. Other towns are Lompoc, Guadaloupe, Carpenteria, Goleta, and Central City. Sheep-raising has heretofore constituted the most important industry of the county, the Channel islands furnishing their share of the product, but agriculture and fruit-growing are coming to be regarded as more reliable sources of profit. Olive oil is being produced on a large scale, and Santa Barbara has entered into successful competition with her neighbors in the growth of citrus fruits. The assessed valuation of the county in 1889 was $16,000,000.

SANTA CLARA.

Santa Clara is a valley county at the southern extremity of San Francisco bay, with an area of 1,296 square miles, and a population of 75,000, against 35,039 in 1880. It is one of the most important grain and fruit producing sections of the state. San Jose, the fifth city in California, is the county seat, and is situated in the center of a magnificent valley; three miles distant is the town of Santa Clara, the two being connected by the famous Alameda. Other places are Gilroy, Los Gatos, Mountain View, Mayfield, New Almaden, and Milpitas. The resources of the county embrace cereals, fruits, wool, live stock, and dairy products. The orchards yield, without irrigation, thousands of tons of the choicest fruit every season, and vast fields of grain cover the valley for miles without a break. At San Jose is located the State Normal School, and on Mount Hamilton, 20 miles distant, is the world-famous Lick Observatory, with its great 36-inch telescope. The assessed valuation of property in 1889 was $52,000,000.

SANTA CRUZ.

Santa Cruz is comparatively a small county on the northern side of Monterey bay, with San Mateo on the north, and Santa Clara on the east. Its area is 437 square miles, and the population, placed at 12,802 in 1880, is now estimated at 32,000. Santa Cruz, a flourishing city of 12,000 inhabitants, noted as a seaside resort, is the county seat. Watsonville, in the Pajaro valley, one of the most fertile sections of the state, is the second town in size. Other places are Soquel, Aptos, Felton, and Capitola. The Coast range here comes down near to the sea, and its slopes and canyons, covered with a dense growth of redwood, furnish a source of wealth and employment to many lumbermen. The powder works near Santa Cruz, and extensive lime works and tanneries, also add materially to the prosperity of the people. The beet-sugar works at Watsonville are the largest in the United States, if not in the world. Santa Cruz annually sends large quantities of fruit to market, and thousands of acres of mountain land have been planted to fruit and vines during the last few years. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $11,160,230.

SHASTA.

Shasta county forms the extreme northern point of the great Sacramento valley. Here are the headwaters of the river, which has its source in the defiles of Mt. Shasta, and here is some of the most picturesque scenery in the west. The county is traversed both by the Sierra and the Coast range, and for the most part is extremely mountainous, while the forest is largely virgin. The area is 3,765 square miles, and the population has jumped from 9,492 in 1880 to fully 18,000 at present. Redding, the county seat, is one of the most promising cities north of Sacramento. It lies in a position to command the trade of a rich farming, mining, and lumbering region, and its growth during the last two years has been phenomenal. Other towns are Shasta, Cottonwood, and Anderson. Until recently farming, stock-raising, and mining were the chief industries, but experiment has shown that soil and climate in Shasta are specially adapted to fruits, and a very large acreage has been planted, and several flourishing colonies have been established. The completion of the California and Oregon railroad has given a great impetus to the development of the county, and settlers are rapidly locating on the public lands. The assessed value of the county in 1889 was $6,600,000.

SIERRA.

As its name indicates, Sierra is one of the counties that is formed by the great chain of mountains that bars off California from Nevada. It lies to the south of Lassen and Plumas, and most of its surface is broken by mountain peaks and ridges, though there are a number of rich valleys, walled in by spurs of the Sierra Nevada. The area is 781 square miles. The United States census of 1880 gave the population as 6,623; at present the county has about 8,000. Downieville, the county seat, was once the seat of very important mines, and it still commands a large trade. Other towns are Sierra City and Forest City. Mining has always been the leading industry. The county was rich in mineral deposits, and in the early days it produced large quantities of gold. Now, when only a small number of mines are worked, the yield is still something over $1,000,000 a year. Agriculture is carried on in the elevated valleys, the land being extraordinarily fertile. The assessed valuation of the county in 1889 was $1,700,000.

SISKIYOU.

At the far northern end of the state, Siskiyou includes the mountains that form the natural wall between California and Oregon. It lies between Modoc and Del Norte, and comprises some of the finest scenery in the state. At the eastern end are portions of the historic lava-beds. The canyons of the Sacramento and Pitt rivers form the natural highway to Oregon, while the whole western part is a series of broken mountain ridges. Yreka, the county seat, is a flourishing town, while other new towns along the railroad are Sisson's, Upper Soda Springs, and Montague. The area of the county is 6,078 square miles, and the population, given in 1880 as 8,610, is now estimated at 15,500. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $6,000,000. Mining is still the chief industry, but general farming is rapidly taking its place, as the lands are rich and produce heavy crops of all the cereals. In the northern part stock-raising is carried on. In the southeastern part of the county lies Mt. Shasta. The Southern Pacific Company have proposed to the United States government to set aside the region near Mt. Shasta as a national park, and thus preserve the timber and game. If this be done, the region will become a resort for tourists second only in its attractions to the Yosemite valley.

SOLANO.

One of the richest fruit and grain counties in the state is Solano, which borders on the straits of Carquinez and Suisun bay. Its area is 828 square miles, and it has a population of 25,000, a rapid growth from the 18,475 given in the United States census of 1880. Fairfield, the county seat, is the center of a large trade, and other important towns are Suisun, Rio Vista, Benicia, Cordelia and Vallejo. The latter is the largest place in the county, and is noted as the site of Mare Island navy-yard, the only government naval station on this coast. For many years Solano county was chiefly famous for the large crops of wheat that it produced, but of late years it has established an equal reputation for fruit-growing. The Vaca valley region is celebrated as among the great fruit sections of the state. The warmth and equability of the climate in this favored valley insures remarkably early and heavy crops of all kinds of fruit. From Vacaville, the chief town in the valley, no less than ten car-loads of fruit are daily shipped during the season. The county has the best health record in the state. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $19,182,050.

SONOMA.

Sonoma county has an ocean boundary of 65 miles, between Marin and Mendocino, with Napa county on the east, and San Pablo bay fringing a portion of its southern shore. Its area is 1,500 square miles, and its estimated population 37,500. The United States census of 1880 gave a population of 25,926. Santa Rosa, the county seat, is a city of great commercial importance, while the enterprise of its people has made it one of the most beautiful in the state, with great advantages in the way of schools and churches. Other towns of importance are Sonoma, which was settled by the mission padres in 1823, Petaluma, Healdsburg, Guerneville and Cloverdale. Sonoma, like Napa, is celebrated as one of the chief wine-making counties. Here the first thorough experiments were made in introducing choice foreign varieties of wine grapes, and for many years Sonoma took the lead both in quality and quantity of wine produced. She still takes third rank in the production of wine and table grapes. There has been a great increase in the acreage of grapes during the last five years, and much land formerly regarded as worthless has been shown specially adapted to the vine. Nearly all fruits do well in Sonoma, and the yield is large. Dairying, stock-raising, wool-growing and lumbering are all important industries. For the first three, it is unsurpassed, because of the moisture that keeps the natural grasses green until far into the dry season. The redwood belt is extensive, and the great lumbering camps along the Russian river turn out an average of 1,000,000 feet per day. The county's assessed valuation in 1889 was $31,222,671.

STANISLAUS.

One of the great wheat counties is Stanislaus, in the heart of the San Joaquin valley. It extends from the foot-hill counties of Calaveras and Tuolumne to Santa Clara on the west, and is watered by the San Joaquin, Stanislaus and Tuolumne rivers. Most of the land is level as a barn floor, of exhaustless fertility, and is held in great ranches by owners who derive a princely income from the grain crops, that are seldom known to fail. The area of the county is 1,500 square miles, and the estimated population is 12,000; the United States census of 1880 gave the population as 8,751. Modesto, the county seat, is the center of one of the richest farming districts in the state, and though a young town, it has over 2,500 people. Other towns are Knight's Ferry, Oakdale, Hill's Ferry and Turlock. Wheat-growing is the leading pursuit, but fruit-growing will soon dispute precedence with it. A very large acreage of fruit trees has been planted during the last five years. Even the citrus fruits flourish here, where frost is almost unknown. The deciduous fruits and grapes from Stanislaus are celebrated for their superior size and flavor. The assessed valuation of the county in 1889 was $17,000,000.

SUTTER.

Lying in the heart of the Sacramento valley, Sutter county would be almost a level plain but for the Sutter buttes, that rise to a height of 1,000 feet and form the great landmark in the valley. The county is inclosed between the Sacramento and Feather rivers, and the soil is alluvial material of exhaustless fertility. Where not cultivated, it supports a heavy growth of oak; and it has been cropped from year to year in wheat and other grains without showing any decrease of yield. The area is 610 square miles, and there is almost no waste land. The census of 1880 gave a population of 5,159, but the estimated population to-day is 7,000. The county seat, Yuba city, is situated on the Feather river, directly opposite to Marysville, in Yuba county, the great trading-post for a half-dozen counties. Other towns are Nicolaus, Meridian, Live Oak and Pleasant Grove. The chief industry in Sutter is farming, and the county is noted for the size of its wheat ranches and the wealth of their owners. With the single exception of Colusa, its ranchmen have clung more closely than any others in the state to their original possessions, and the great crops of wheat and barley they raise every year have made them rich. Within a few years fruit-growing has been introduced, and promises to be a great industry, as the soil and climate suit nearly all varieties. The assessed valuation of 1889 was $10,100,000, which makes Sutter the richest county in the state, as far as average wealth is concerned.

TEHAMA.

The northern end of the Sacramento valley is formed by Tehama county, which reaches from the Sierra to the Coast range, and from Shasta on the north to Butte and Colusa on the south. The area is 3,125 square miles; and the United States census of 1880 gave the population as 9,301, but it is estimated the present population is fully 15,000. Red Bluff, the county seat, is one of the most important cities in northern California. It lies on a high bluff of the Sacramento river, and has many fine buildings and a large and growing trade. Other towns are Corning, Vina and Tehama. The lands of Tehama are fully as rich as those of Sutter, but there is more waste land, which is utilized as sheep pasture. For years the chief industries were wheat and wool-growing, but of late fruit has received special attention. Many of the great wheat ranches have been split up, and sold in small farms to settlers, who are planting prunes, peaches and other deciduous fruits. The county boasts of the largest vineyard in the state, or in the world,—the estate of Senator Stanford at Vina, comprising 50,000 acres, of which 3,500 acres are planted to wine grapes. Large fields are sown to alfalfa, and Holstein cattle and thoroughbred horses are also a feature of this ranch. In the northern section lumbering is an important industry. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $11,904,255.

TRINITY.

Trinity county is one of the far northern counties, lying just south of Siskiyou, and between Shasta and Tehama on the east and Humboldt on the west. Its area is 2,625 square miles; and the population, given by the United States census of 1880 as 4,999, is now estimated at 6,500. Weaverville, the county seat, is on the Trinity river, and is the natural center for the trade of a large mining district. Other towns are Trinity Center, Lewiston, Junction City and Altoona. The chief industry of Trinity has been mining. The county is drained by the Trinity river, and it is nearly hemmed in on all sides by mountains that contain rich deposits of mineral. Hydraulic mining, which has been enjoined by law in counties that drain into the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, is still carried on here, but quartz-mining is the main source of wealth. The last few years have seen an effort to utilize the fine grazing advantages of the county, and much fruit has been planted in the mountain valleys, where it grows to perfection. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $1,153,344.

TULARE.

Tulare county has an area of 6,406 square miles, and is the sixth in size in California; its topography is exceedingly diversified; from the low plains of the San Joaquin valley it gradually rises until its altitude culminates in Mount Whitney, 14,887 feet above the sea-level. Tulare lake, the largest body of fresh water in the state, is also embraced within its boundaries. Tulare lies south of Fresno and north of Kern, extending from the coast range on the borders of Monterey and Fresno to the peaks of the Inyo sierra. It contains over a million acres of valley land, watered by an extensive system of irrigating ditches from Kings and Kaweah rivers, and is the banner wheat-producing county of the state. Although the climate and soil are perfectly adapted to the growth of raisin grapes, and in fact all of the semi-tropic fruits, they are not yet cultivated on an extensive scale. The tendency, however, each year is to plant less wheat and more vines and fruit trees. The foot-hill section is devoted to agriculture and stock-raising, and in the mountains several prosperous saw-mills are located. The population in 1880 was 11,281; now it is not less than 30,000. Visalia is the county seat; Tulare, division headquarters of the Southern Pacific, is the largest town; Traver, Goshen, Hanford, Grangeville, Lemoore, Portersville and Farmersville are growing places. In 1889 the assessed valuation was $24,443,013.

TUOLUMNE.

Tuolumne is an irregularly shaped county on the western slope of the Sierra, bounded on the north by Alpine, east by Mono, south by Mariposa, and west by Stanislaus and Calaveras; its area is 1,953 square miles; the character of the county is mountainous, though rolling hills, table-lands, and sheltered valleys afford rich grazing lands and many acres of tillable soil. Mining, as in the early days of California, is still the leading industry of the people; quarries of marble and slate are also successfully worked; the timber belt of the Sierra Nevada affords a livelihood to many lumbermen, and fruit-growing and diversified farming receive considerable attention. The Stanislaus and Tuolumne rivers flow through the county. In Tuolumne is located the famous Hetch-Hetchy valley, which in scenic grandeur is second only to the Yosemite; two groves of big trees and a mammoth cave are also among the natural wonders of the county. The population is estimated at 10,000; in 1880 it was 7,848. Sonora is the county seat. Columbia and Chinese Camp are other towns. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $2,716,465.

VENTURA.

Ventura county is bounded by Santa Barbara and Kern on the north, Los Angeles on the east, and the Pacific ocean and a portion of Santa Barbara on the west, having 65 miles of sea-coast, and an area of 1,683 square miles. Ventura is noted for the extent of its grazing and farming lands, its petroleum-producing districts, and the healthfulness of its climate. Having until recently been deprived of railroad communication to market, and many of its large ranches being undivided, its progress in the past was slow, but it has now entered upon an era of genuine prosperity. The production of cereals and fruits is increasing, and a desirable class of immigrants are finding homes in the county. The honey industry is very important, over 3,000,000 pounds being marketed in 1887. Ventura, the county seat, is situated near the ocean on the Ventura river and 12 miles from the port of Hueneme, in the oil belt, which promises to be a source of great wealth. The Santa Clara and Ojai valleys are capable of supporting a vast population, and are being rapidly settled up. The population in 1880 was 5,073; now it is at least 16,000. The assessed valuation in 1889 was $8,000,000.

YOLO.

Yolo county is a portion of the great Sacramento valley, bounded by Colusa, Sacramento, Sonoma, Solano, and Lake, embracing 1,017 square miles of land, nearly all of which is adapted to agriculture. There are, however, about 40,000 acres of so-called swamp land, which, though overflowed in the winter, furnish in summer good pasturage for stock. The Sacramento river flows along the eastern boundary of the county, while Putah and Cache creeks and many smaller streams supply over 50 miles of irrigating ditches for the dryer districts. The fruit and vegetables of Yolo are unexcelled; raisins are extensively produced, and the orange crop is increasing yearly. Wheat, barley, and hay, however, are the chief products. Dairying is an important industry, and of late years considerable attention has been paid to the growth of hops. The California and Oregon Railway passes through the county. The population is estimated at 16,000, as against 11,772 in 1880. Woodland is the county seat, and is only 18 miles from the capital of the state. Other towns are Davisville, Knight's Landing, Yolo, Capay, Dunnigan, Madison, and Washington. In 1889 the assessed valuation of the county was $21,911,235.

YUBA.

Yuba county, with an area of 917 square miles, is bounded by Butte and Plumas on the north, Sierra and Nevada on the east, Nevada, Placer, and Sutter on the south, and Sutter on the west. It was formerly the center of the hydraulic mining industry, and thousands of acres of farming land were ruined by debris; but now that an injunction has been put on the miners, many of their ditches are being used for the purpose of irrigation. Thus, while the output of the mines has very largely decreased, the agricultural and horticultural resources of the county are being developed to a surprising extent. Lumber is manufactured on a large scale, and fruits and grain are produced in constantly increasing quantities. The population of the county, in 1880 11,284, is now about 15,000, but recently it has begun to increase in a greater ratio. Marysville, the county seat, is a well-built city of about 8,000 inhabitants. Wheatland, Smartsville, Camptonville and Brownsville are other towns. In 1889 the assessed valuation of the county was $7,046,316.

KERN COUNTY.

KERN COUNTY is one of the largest and most diversified of the State, having an area of 8,100 square miles, and including within its limits the widest possible range of climate and soil. About two-thirds of the county is mountainous in character, reaching from the thermal region of the foot-hills to the lofty peaks of the Sierra Nevadas; the remainder consists of mesa lands and alluvial bottoms and is commonly known as KERN VALLEY.

This valley, besides enjoying a wide fame for its marvelous productiveness, has the lightest rainfall of the State, averaging but 4.21 inches per year during the past eight years. This, besides securing to the valley a wholesome dryness of atmosphere and absence of fogs and dew, insures the most perfect conditions for the development, ripening and curing of grapes and fruits; while Kern River, one of the noblest of the State, threads the valley and affords abundance of water for irrigation at all seasons of the year.

These features are attracting to this section many of the oldest and most experienced vineyardists and fruit growers from all parts of the State, besides drawing a large and constantly increasing flow of immigration from the States east of the Rocky Mountains and from Europe.

During the past year, the great landed estates of J. B. Haggin, Esq., have been placed upon the market in subdivisions, and the rapidly settling colonies of Rosedale, Mountain View and Lerdo have been laid out. These selections were made with express view to their adaptation to the raisin grape, the fig, almond, olive, and the whole range of drying fruits.

The prices have been set at a very low figure with easy terms of payment to the actual settler, and the colonies are obtaining a wide and well-deserved popularity.

Information concerning them and other lands of the valley may be had from the Land Department of J. B. Haggin, L. C. McAfee and C. Brower, Managers, Bakersfield, Cal.

olis, so that the climate is much better than points either north, south, or west of here. The city lies in Alameda county, adjoining Oakland, the county seat, and is about 7 miles across the bay from San Francisco, with which it is connected by two lines of steam ferries, giving communication every fifteen minutes, connecting with two steam railroads about ¼ of a mile apart, with trains running through the town lengthwise. There is also a line of street cars connecting with Oakland. The city is a natural peninsula, 4 miles long by 1 wide, which has recently been made into an island by the Oakland harbor improvements in progress by the U. S. Government, and which mammoth enterprise is proportionately of as much importance to Alameda as to Oakland. A great advance in public improvements has been made within the past few years by energetic citizens and the city authorities, including a system of sewerage and street grading and paving, prosecuted with such unexampled vigor and wide extent as to greatly enhance the value of property and general attractiveness of the city. Nearly a hundred electric lights, mounted on high towers and masts, give a most cheerful glow at night. The city controls all these and other improvements, and makes liberal provisions for her public schools, which are as good as any in the State, and consist of a high school and the usual subordinate grades, with an enrollment of upwards of 2,000 pupils. The government of the city is by a board of five trustees, and the schools are managed by a board of education. There are well-organized police and fire departments, and a free public library supported by a public tax, having 8,000 volumes. There are ten churches, distributed among the denominations as follows: 1 Baptist, 1 Catholic, 1 Congregationalist, 1 Episcopal, 1 German Congregationalist, 2 Methodist, 1 Free Methodist, 1 Presbyterian, 1 Swedenborgian. There are the usual secret orders and societies, a large number of public halls, a bank, two newspapers, the Encinal, weekly, and the Argus, semi-weekly. Population. 11,000. Exp., W. F & Co. and local expresses. Tel., W. U. Telephone communication with San Francisco and surrrounding towns. This city has two postoffices—Alameda, George Sturtevant, postmaster; and West End, Miss M. A. Morris, postmaster.

ARROYO GRANDE. A thriving town in San Luis Obispo county, on the line of the Pacific Coast Railway, 259 miles southeast of San Francisco and 15 southeast of San Luis Obispo, the county seat. It is delightfully situated in the valley of the same name, and is only 3 miles from the ocean and the famous Pismo beach, where there is a wharf and ample shipping facilities. The town was settled in 1868, and has a population of 500. It contains an excellent public school, with 4 teachers and 208 pupils, Cumberland, Presbyterian, Methodist, Catholic and Advent churches. The fraternal societies are largely represented, and there is also a local agricultural society that holds annual fairs, for the accommodation of which a fine pavilion, 40 by 114, has been built. The principal shipments are beans, potatoes, barley, vegetables, fruit, wood and asphaltum. The land in this vicinity is unexcelled by any other locality in the world for productiveness, being a rich adobe sediment in the valley and a sandy loam on the hills In competition with the whole United States, this valley secured the highest prizes offered by the Philadelphia seedmen for the largest beet, mangel and onion; the latter weighing seven pounds and measuring 26 inches in circumference. The minerals in this vicinity are specially valuable, the principal ones being chalk rock, building stone, bituminous rock, onyx and asphaltum. The celebrated Newsom Springs are only 2 miles east of the town, with their health-giving waters bubling up from the earth with a temperature of 100°, a certain specific for most of the ills of man. The Arroyo Grande stream flows through the valley and town with a fall that could be utilized for mill or factory purposes every half mile. Besides several fine merchandise stores the town supports a well conducted independent newspaper, the Arroyo Grande Herald. Exp., W. F. & Co. Tel., W. U. Mail, daily, A. Phillips, postmaster.

AUBURN. The county seat of Placer county, was first settled as a mining camp in 1849; later was incorporated; afterward disincorporated, and more recently reincorporated. It is a very interesting place as representative of the early gold mining of California. The old mines were nearly all located in the ravine throngh which runs what is called Auburn Ravine creek, consequently business sprang up in that locality, and has ever since been maintained there. It now has a population of about 1,800 inhabitants. It is 126 miles northeast of San Francisco, and 36 northeast of Sacramento. The depot is about ¾ mile distant, close to which the leading hotels are located at an elevation of some 1,200 feet above sea level. Its principal buildings are the court-house, jail, county hospital, public school, normal college, Putnam House, Freeman's Hotel and Arlington Hotel. The churches sustained are Catholic, Methodist, Congregational and Episcopalian. The public school has 5 teachers, 250 scholars, and a library of 400 volumes. A new system of water works, with a pressure of 350 feet in the business part of the town, is in operation, which affords, together with the 2 hose companies, excellent protection against fire. Two banks do business here, and 3 newspapers are published, the Placer County Republican, the Placer County Herald, and the Placer Argus. Several gold mines in the vicinity are worked, and limestone of good quality is burned at the kilns 4 miles east, and shipped from this point. Daily stages to Placerville, $3.50; Georgetown, $3; Coloma, $2.50; Greenwood, $2; and Pilot Hill; also to Forest Hill and Michigan Bluff daily, fares, $3 and $4. Fruits and vegetables are the principal products. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mail, daily. Berry Mitchell, postmaster.

THE LARGEST AND NEWSIEST WEEKLY OF NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.

These are a consolidation of the CHICO CHRONICLE, formerly published by Brown & Walker, and the BUTTE RECORD, published by George A. Crosette, the oldest paper in Butte County, and one of the oldest in the State. They are now owned, published and edited by the Chico Publishing Company, composed of the gentlemen whose names appear above, Chico, Butte Co., Cal.

Chico is the metropolis of the great County of Butte, situated on the California and Oregon Railroad, 96 miles north of Sacramento. It has a population of 5,000, and is rapidly growing, being the central point of the finest agricultural and horticultural region of Northern California. It is also the seat of the branch State Normal School and of the State Forestry Station. As an advertising medium the Daily and Weekly CHRONICLE RECORD has no equal in the Northern part of California.

COLUSA. The county seat of Colusa county, was first settled in 1850, and occupies a beautiful site on the west bank of the Sacramento river, which affords transportation with San Francisco and Sacramento. It is a station on the Colusa and Lake Narrow Gauge R. R., 10 miles east of Colusa Junction on the S. P. R. R., being by rail 139 miles north of San Francisco, and 75 northwest of Sacramento, and is the initial point of the Colusa and Lake R. R. The Sacramento river is navigable to this place for barges of 1000 tons burden, while above only for 300-ton barges. The town contains a bank with a capital of $700,000; two daily newspapers, the Sun and Gazette, and two weeklies, the Herald and Sun; Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, Presbyterian and Colored Methodist churches, 2 good public schools with 8 teachers and 420 scholars, the buildings costing about $15,000; a school library of 1,000 volumes; flour mill, foundry, fruit cannery, planing mill, machine shop, etc. Fruit growing will soon be the leading industry. The output of the cannery here in 1889 was 500,000 cans of fruit, 50 tons dried fruit and 50 tons raisins. The land of this vicinity is admirable for fruit, and the raisins produced here are of the best quality. The town has gas and water works, a good fire department, a theater of 400 seating capacity. Shipments, grain, fruit, raisins, broom corn, etc. Stages, daily. Yuba City and Marysville, 28 miles, fare, $3; Arbuckle, 24 miles, $2; Meridian, 8 miles, $1; Williams, 50 cts. Population, 2,500. CORNWALL STATION. A discontinued postoffice on the S. P. R. R., in Contra Costa county, 14 miles east of Martinez, the county seat, and nearest bank location. It is the railroad shipping station for Black Diamond, 1 mile northwest.

CORONADO. This famous suburb of San Diego, up to 1886, was regarded as a sandy waste of no practical value, except as a water break to protect the harbor of San Diego, lying between that and the ocean. The place is now dotted with beautiful cottages and substantial edifices, the most prominent of which is the Hotel Del Coronado, said to be one of the largest in the world, costing about a million dollars. The Hotel Josephine is also a prominent structure, situated on the most elevated point of the peninsula. Coronado Beach, as it is generally called, is still "disputed territory," as to whether it forms a part of the city of San Diego, or whether it will become a separate corporation. It has a postoffice of its own, and yet it is so intimately related to the larger town as to have nearly an identity of interest. It is connected with San Diego on one side by a steam-ferry running every 20 minutes; and on the other side by a motor railroad running along the sand-spit through National City. There is an excellent public school and two church organizations. Exp., W. F. & Co. Tel., W. U. Mail, daily. James L. Dryden, postmaster.

EUREKA. Settled in 1850, and incorporated as a city in 1874; is the county seat of Humboldt county, and the principal shipping and trading point on the northern coast, being situated on the eastern margin of Humboldt bay, a fine land-locked harbor, 15 miles long, 3 wide, and with 75 miles of navigable channels, forming the most capacious harbor between San Francisco and Puget sound. Situated thus, and surrounded by resources but partially developed, Eureka is destined to be a city of great importance. Contiguous are immense forests of redwood, pine, fir, spruce, cedar, madrone, laurel, black, white and live oak. Stock raising, agriculture and fruit growing are carried on, and as the land is stripped of timber it is seeded to grasses, and becomes first-class grazing land. The city is located on the Eureka & Eel River R. R., a standard-gauge road, reaching out to the valley of the Eel river, and is connected with the various towns and settlements in the county by good wagon-roads. Its principal manufactories are 6 lumber mills, door and sash factory, 2 molding mills, furniture factory, planing mill, iron foundry and tannery. The churches are, 2 Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist, Baptist, Christian, Adventist and United Brethren. It has excellent educational advantages, having 12 public schools, with 23 teachers and an attendance of 1400 pupils. Besides these it has a business college, and St. Joseph's Institute and Academy for Young Ladies conducted by the Sisters of Charity, and the Eureka Free Library is also an educational feature of the city. It has a street railway, 4 banks, gas and water works, electric lights, a good fire department; 4 newspapers, the Times, daily and weekly, the Standard, daily and weekly, The Western Watchman, weekly, and the Mail, weekly. The assessed value of property of the city is over $3.000,000. The city has no bonded debt. The recent public improvements are the new court-house and a public school-house, the latter costing $30,000. There are three public halls or places of amusement, seating capacity 600, 800 and 1,000 respectively. Telephone connection with Arcata. Semi-weekly steamers to San Francisco. Daily stages to Arcata and Freshwater. Shipments, lumber, butter, fish, live stock, wool and apples. Population, 9,000. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mail, daily. Francis P. Thompson, postmaster.

FRESNO CITY. Fresno City is situated on the S. P. R. R., 206 miles southeast of San Francisco, and in almost the exact center of Fresno county, of which it is the county seat. Its growth dates from the autumn of 1872; and the first year it consisted of a few rough shanties for trade and dwellings, around an equally rude railroad depot. In 1874, the county seat was removed thence from Millerton, and the beautiful and commodious court-house, which still adorns the city, was built at a cost of $70,000. For the first 6 or 7 years, Fresno's growth was slow, but operations were in progress around in matters of irrigation, and planting of orchards and vineyards, that soon stimulated its interests and progress. In 1880, the town contained about 1,100 inhabitants; then a new start was given, that in six years increased the population to 5,000. In 1885, Fresno was incorporated a city of the 5th class, governed by a board of trustees; since then its progress has been still more rapid, bringing its present population up to 10,000, and causing it to be the third largest commercial depot in the state. For some time it had but one railroad but now a branch road leads to the eastern mountains and far south, near the foot-hills, into a vast region of grain, lumber and minerals. Another projected railroad from the west, the Page-Wilbur-Paulsell R. R., is now graded to within a dozen miles of the city, that is to give it a new route, both to San Francisco and to the far East. Other new lines are projected, which when built will make Fresno one of the leading railroad centers of the state. The city has also a daily stage, connecting with King's River, 17 miles east; Oleander, 7 miles south; a semi-weekly, to White's Bridge, 20 miles; Toll House, 31 miles, and weekly to Hamptonville, Thermal, Auberry, Lodge and Deseret. Fresno has good religious and educational institutions, nine religious denominations—the Episcopal, North and South Methodists, Baptist, Congregational, Presbyterian, Catholic, Christian and Adventist. All of these have commodious churches, and are growing prosperously. The city at present contains 1,300 children of school age, with an average attendance of 900, and has for its corps of teachers, a principal, vice-principal, and 27 subordinates; it has three fine school-houses, which cost $15,000 each, and two popular kindergarten schools. The press of Fresno is represented by the veteran Expositor, daily and weekly (D.); Republican, daily and weekly (R.); Inquirer, weekly (Ind.); and Chaff (society), all able papers, with a large and rapidly increasing circulation. The city is well represented by the various bodies of social and secret societies; an encampment of Odd Fellows, 2 lodges of Knights of Pythias, a lodge each of the Free and Accepted and Royal Arch Masons, and a commandery of Knights Templar; it also has a lodge of Good Templars, a G. A. R. Post, a parlor of the Native Sons and another of the Native Daughters, 2 groves of the Ancient Order of Druids, a lodge of the Order of United Workingmen, a chapter of the Eastern Star, a lodge of Knights and Ladies of Honor, a post of the Blue and Gray Veterans, the first ever organized, a council of the order of Chosen Friends, a Young Men's Christian Association, a Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and several other moral and religious institutions. The new Y. M. C. A. Building, in course of construction, at a cost of $30,000, will be the best appointed in the state. The city has also an efficient Board of Trade, allied with the State Board of Trade, doing much for the progress of city and county. There are 5 large popular hotels—the Grand Central, Southern Pacific, Ogle House, The Kohler, Hughes Hotel, Tombs House and The Pleasanton. Here is also a large and attractive Masonic Temple. two Opera Houses, an Armory Hall, a new City Hall, and an imposing jail building just completed. It maintains an efficient volunteer fire department, with two excellent steam engines. It has large gas works, and an electric light plant of 100 lights; excellent water is distributed through the city from 4 wells and cisterns of a capacity of 1,500,000 gallons per day; it also has an extensive telephone system. It has 3 horse-car roads in operation, and charters for several more; these are all designed to lead out into the vineyards and orchards on all sides of the city. The city is also constructing an extensive system of sewerage, at a cost of $100,000, and has now in process the paving with concrete cement of the greater part of its business streets. For its private industries Fresno has 2 planing mills, 2 machine shops, 1 flour mill with a capacity of 200 barrels per day, 4 carriage factories, 3 lumber yards, 7 grain warehouses with a capacity of 30,000 tons, 4 immense fruit-packing houses that employ over 1,500 hands during the fruit season, and soap works. It has in operation the First National Bank, with $100,000 paid-up capital, and a circulation which in three years has increased from $118,000 to $536,000 and a surplus of $100,000; the Farmers' Bank, with a paid-up capital of $200,000, and a surplus of $40,000; the Fresno Loan and Savings Bank, with a paid-up capital of $300,000; the Bank of Central California, with a paid-up capital of $120,000; and the Fresno National Bank, with a capital of $200,000, paid up. a Clearing House Exchange, with a daily business of about $50,000. Fresno has at present 4 of the finest bank buildings, not less than 60 large brick business blocks, 2, 3 and 4 stories, and more contemplated or in process of construction, including a costly brick sanitarium. Among the new buildings are a splendid depot, an opera house, Odd Fellows' temple, hospital and county poor-house. A large number of new dwelling houses are also going up. The assessed value of Fresno real and personal property is $6,800,000. Bonded indebtedness, $175,000. The yearly shipments from here amount to 73,000,000 lbs., including 450,000 20-lb. boxes of raisins, 2,000,000 gallons of wine and brandy, 750 tons of dried grapes, 400 tons of dried orchard fruit, and vast quantities of grain and live stock. It has a market costing $35,000, and all the appointments of a first-class and growing city, destined to become one of the most important in the state. Tel., W. U. and P. P. Exp., W. F. & Co. WHAT 40 ACRES CAN DO.

On Monday last W. H. Cureton of this city effected a lease of 40 acres in Central California Colony for 5 years at $1,550 a year. Of this tract 34 acres are in vines and the remaining six acres in bearing fruit trees. Seven years ago this soil had not been cultivated, and the entire amount sold for much less than one acre would bring to-day. Just think of it, $1,550 a year for only 40 acres of land, a sum equal to 10 per cent. interest on $15,500. On the other side of the Mississippi River this sum would rent a 500-acre cotton plantation, or the best 500-acre farm in Missouri, Kentucky or Tennessee. And yet the persons who leased this 40 acres have every reason to believe that they will make a yearly net profit of from $3,000 to $5,000. Truly, Fresno County is a wonderland.—Fresno Expositor, Sept. 27, 1889.

GILROY. Is a city of about 2,000 inhabitants, and is picturesquely situated in the southern portion of Santa Clara county, one of the most celebrated dairying, agricultural and fruit-growing districts in California. It is on the Coast Division of the S. P. R. R., being 30 miles south of San Jose, and 80 miles from San Francisco. Dating as a settlement from 1837, it was incorporated as a city in 1870. There are five churches, viz: Presbyterian, Christain, Catholic and two Methodists; one good public school, with an average daily attendance of 400 pupils; a theater, with a seating capacity of 700; a bank, with a capital of $200,000; and two weekly newspapers, the Crescent and Advocate, and one daily paper, the Gazette. The assessed value of property is $716.695. The city is free from indebtedness of any kind, owns its water-works, and is in a good financial condition. There is also a cannery which has gained quite a reputation for the excellence of its canned and dried fruits. Mails arrive from San Francisco twice a day. Climate is unsurpassed in the way of healthfulness, and crops are insured in this section when localities 15 to 20 miles distant are suffering from drought. Stages leave on arrival of trains for surrounding towns. Exp., W. F. & Co. Tel., W. U. Mail, daily. Victor Bassignano, postmaster.

R., 16 miles north of San Jose, and 34 southeast of San Francisco. The location, climatically considered, is one of the best in the State, as evidenced by the increasing shipments of fruit, vegetables, grapes, wheat, barley, hay, wines and brandy. The famous Bodega winery is here, having a storage capacity of 1,500,000 gallons. The foot-hills are fast being cultivated to the vine, fig, olive, lemon, walnut and orange. The public schools are equal to any in the county, while Washington college is not excelled by any interior college in the State. Banking facilities, at Oakland or San Jose. Telephone, to all points on Sunset T. T. Co.'s lines. Population, 500. Stages, to Mission San Jose 6 times daily, fare 25 cents. Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Mail, daily.

PACIFIC BANK { Oldest chartered Commercial Bank on the Pacific Coast. Transacts a general banking business. Capital and Surplus, $1,750,000. } INCORPORATED 1863.

LOS ANGELES. The metropolis of Southern California and county seat of Los Angeles county ranks as the second city in the state in population, wealth and commercial importance. It occupies a picturesque site in a valley between the Sierra Madre range of mountains and the sea coast, 482 miles by rail south of San Francisco and 20 north of Wilmington, its seaport. The history of the city dates from its settlement by the Spaniards in the year 1780. As a pueblo under Spanish and Mexican rule there was but little progress, and it remained a comparatively unknown and sleepy hamlet until its occupation by the American forces in 1846. From that date the place assumed a more active appearance, but even as late as 1870, the town might have been called almost a typical Mexican one, with its numerous adobe buildings, sleepy population of 8,000, and inactive, provincial business methods. But a change came with the advent of the Southern Pacific Railroad in 1876, when the new American Los Angeles started on an era of growth and prosperity not excelled in the history of any city in the Union, its increase being so rapid that at the present time it contains about 85,000 inhabitants. It is the center of the railroad system of Southern California. In addition to the main line of the S. P. Co. (overland via El Paso), which passes through the city, there are diverging branches of this road extending to San Pedro, Santa Monica, Long Beach, Santa Ana and Whittier. There is also the Southern California Railway, extending to San Bernardino, and from thence to Barstow, where connection is made with the Atlantic and Pacific. The S. C. Co. also have in operation roads extending to Santa Ana, San Diego, National City, Redondo Beach, Escondido and other localities south and east. The religious denominations are represented by the Adventists, Baptists, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Evangelical, Lutherans, Hebrews, Methodists, Presbyterians, Roman Catholics, Unitarians, etc., several of which own handsome church edifices. The Young Mens' Christian Association is in a very prosperous condition, and occupies a beautiful building, erected at a cost of $100,000. Many institutions of a high character are maintained by public and private appropriations and donations, and secret and benevolent societies are largely represented. Excellent public schools are maintained, with about 160 teachers and and 7,000 pupils. In addition to these institutions of learning, are the State Normal School, University of Southern California, Occidental University of Los Angeles, St. Vincent's College, Los Angeles School of Art and Design, Los Angeles Conservatory of Music, etc. The Los Angeles Public Library has commodious rooms in the City Hall, and consists of about 11,000 volumes. There is also the Law Library of Los Angeles with 6,000 volumes. The assessed value of real and personal property for the fiscal year 1889-90 was $44,870,073. Bonded indebtedness $657,000. There are 15 banks, all of which are in a flourishing condition; several theaters and opera houses; 7 street railroads, of which 2 are cable, and 5 horse lines; gas and electric light works and water works. There is an efficient fire department, composed of 7 engine companies, 1 hose company, and 1 hook and ladder company. Several well-conducted journals advocate the interests of the section; of these 4 are daily, viz: the Express, Herald, Times, Tribune, also various others published weekly or monthly, including 2 French, 3 Spanish, and 1 German paper. The climate is mild and of an even temperature, the distance from the coast being sufficient to escape the high winds, which at times prevail there, yet close enough to receive the moistening and cooling influence of the sea air. The land in the vicinity is varied in quality, but will produce unexampled crops with proper irrigation and cultivation. Almost every variety of grain, vegetable, fruit, nut or berry produced in temperate or semi-tropical latitudes flourish here. Apricots, nectarines, prunes, grapes, pomegranates, English walnuts, almonds and olives are among the established products. The principal shipments are oranges and citrus fruits, raisins, wine, wool, barley, borax and general merchandise. Exp., W. F. & Co. Tel., W. U., also, P. P. Telephone communication is maintained throughout the city, and with surrounding towns, by the Sunset Tel. Co.

DON C. SMITH

PROF. SMITH'S
MOUNTAIN BALM AND HAIR TONIC,

Will Positively Produce Hair on Bald Heads,

Prevent the Hair from Falling Out, Cure Dandruff and all Diseases of the Scalp.

DON C. SMITH

Easy and pleasant to use; purely vegetable; contains no sugar of lead or deleterious substance. Makes the hair grow soft and silky. It is also an excellent preparation for the beard and mustache. It is an elegant face wash; removes freckles, tan or pimples, and renders the skin soft and white.

Read the following testimonial from a man well known in Los Angeles, whose portraits are shown below, and who can be seen any day at his place of business, No. 111 E. Second street:

BEFORE USING.

This is to certify that I am 47 years of age. I have been bald about twenty-three years. I commenced using Smith's Hair Tonic March 10, 1888. My occupation is hotel proprietor, Los Angeles, California. I have used the above tonic about one month. New hair appeared on the bald spot on my head in two weeks. I have used but one bottle. I believe it to be all that Don C. Smith claims for it. The new hair has grown to the length of one inch.

J. C. RICE.

AFTER USING.

Certified to before me this 25th day of June, 1888, in the city and county of Los Angeles, California.
C. H. DUNSMOOR, County Clerk. By JOHN FISHER, Deputy.

It only requires a fair trial, and it will do all that is claimed. Sold wholesale and retail at laborntory, Los Angeles. Agents wanted in all parts of the country, to whom liberal commissions will be given. Orders by mail or express promptly filled. DON C SMITH, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

MARYSVILLE. The county seat of Yuba county, was laid out in 1849, and incorporated as a city Feb. 5, 1851. It is on the S. P. R. R., (Shasta route) 52 miles north of Sacramento, 142 northeast of San Francisco, and 26 south of Oroville, with which it is connected by rail. The city lies at the junction of the Yuba with the Feather river, the latter being navigable for light-draught steamers, and together with its railroad facilities is very advantageously situated for commercial purposes. It contains churches of the Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist, Episcopal, Evangelical Lutheran, African Methodist, and Baptist denominations, excellent public schools, the College of Notre Dame, and several other private schools. Commercially speaking, Marysville has a larger trade than any other town north of Sacramento. The local mercantile houses do a large business, the country tributary being prosperous and constantly increasing in wealth. Two newspapers are published, the Appeal and the Democrat, both daily and weekly. There are two banks, Rideout & Smith's and Decker, Jewett & Co. It has gas, electric light and water works, also a paid fire department. Stage communication is maintained with Colusa, Grass Valley, Nevada City, Downieville and intermediate towns. Tel., W. MODESTO. The county seat of Stanislaus county, lies near the Tuolumne river, is a station on the S. P. R. R., 114 miles east of San Francisco, 77 south of Sacramento, and 30 southeast of Stockton. The town was laid out in 1870, made the county seat in 1872, and incorporated as a city in 1884. It is situated in a section of fine wheat-growing country, and is the center of trade and shipping point for a large extent of territory. The churches here are Methodist, North and South, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Congregational, Baptist, Catholic and Christian. Two public schools are maintained, with 9 teachers and 600 pupils. Its chief manufactories are a planing mill, flour mill and a foundry. The principal buildings are the court house, erected at a cost of $60,000, the county hospital and the business blocks. Rodgers' Hall has seating accommodations for 500. There are two banks doing business here, and 2 newspapers published, the Herald and the daily and weekly News. A system of irrigation for the district surrounding Modesto, comprising 108,000 acres, is under consideration, with good prospects of being carried out, which will be the means of enhancing values of real estate and otherwise benefitting the city. The city has gas and water works, volunteer fire department and telephone connection. Shipments, chiefly wheat, hides, fruit and wool. Stages tri-weekly to Coulterville, Sonora, Oakdale, Knight's Ferry, Chinese Camp, Waterford and La Grange, Tel., W. U. Exp., W. F. & Co. Population, 2,500, Mail, daily. Charles A. Post, postmaster.

The bay is a fine sheet of water, opening out into the Pacific ocean, 25 miles across at the mouth, and is noted as a resort for boating, fishing and bathing. It was discovered by Spanish explorers in 1542. The city was first settled as a Spanish Catholic mission. June 3, 1770, captured by the Americans July 7, 1846, and the stars and stripes hoisted on the custom house, which still stands, said to be the first American flag raised on

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Mexican territory on this coast. It was incorporated as a city in 1851. For many years this was the seat of government for California under Spanish and Mexican rule, and many of the old governors lived, died and were buried here. The first constitutional convention to organize this into an American state was held in the old capitol, which is still standing, and is now used for the public school. The city contains Catholic, Episcopal and Presbyterian churches and a good public school. The noted Hotel Del Monte, a magnificent building surrounded by beautiful grounds, is located near the town. The city has a good fire department, telephone communication, and excellent water is piped from the head waters of the Carmel river, 25 miles distant. The land in this vicinity is rolling and largely covered with pine woods, a rare thing on the California coast. The soil is varied, but productive. Coal has been discovered in the hills near the city, and about three miles west there is found a superior quality of sand for glass manufacturing. As a watering place it is unsurpassed, and is visited by many tourists and pleasure seekers from all parts of the union. The press is represented by the Monterey Cypress, published weekly. Principal shipments, grain, flour, fresh fish and dairy produce. Exp., W. F. & Co. Tel. W U. Jacob R. Leese, postmaster.

MOUNT HAMILTON. This noted place is the site of the Lick Observatory, is known and often called by the latter name. It is 13 miles on an air line east of San Jose, but is 28 miles distant by the roadway. There is daily stage communication and telephone connection with San Jose. The fare by stage is $3 for the round trip, which is made in a day. Mount Hamilton is 4,443 feet above sea level, and its atmosphere is cloudless the entire year. From its summit the most important observations have been made that have ever been contributed to astronomical science. The Lick Observatory takes its name from James Lick, a millionaire pioneer, who gave $750,000 to the Astronomical Department of the University of California, for the purpose of establishing this observatory. The county of Santa Clara constructed a magnificent roadway to the summit of the mountain at a cost of $100,000, which is of easy grade, and furnishes a beautiful drive, surrounded by unsurpassed scenery. The Lick Observatory is equipped with a 36-inch telescope, which is the largest and most powerful instrument in the world, a 15-inch equatorial refractor, 6½-inch meridian circle, and many auxiliary instruments, such as portable telescopes, chronometers, siderial clocks, etc. The buildings consist of the observer's, transit, photograph and photo-heliograph houses. The dome covering the great telescope is made of steel plates, 75 feet in diameter, weighing about 122 tons. There are five astronomers, a secretary and an engineer in OAKLAND. The county seat of Alameda county is situated on the east side of San Francisco bay, 6 miles from, and opposite San Francisco, the great metropolis of the Pacific Coast, to which it sustains the relation of a delightful suburb for homes of its business men, being famous as the most attractive and in every way the finest residence location on the continent. For equable temperature the climate is the equal if not the superior of any location in the country, not excepting any of the cities of the southern portion of this wonderfully favored state. The gardens bear a perpetual bloom the year round, and for beauty of adornment are unexcelled. The private residences are, many of them, palaces of comfort and beauty. The business houses vie with those of the largest metropolis, and the increase of business has been marked within the past few years. Manufactories are in active operation along the water front, and "Oakland Harbor" makes a fine display of shipping at all seasons of the year. This feature of the city is in the hands of the U. S. Government and large sums of money are expended from year to year, in one of the most extensive harbor improvements in the country. Oakland is a city of schools and churches. Of the latter there are 49 distributed among the denominations, as follows: Baptists, 5; Free Will Baptist, 1; Catholic, 5; Christian, 1; Church of Christ, 1; Congregationalists, 7; Episcopal, 4; Hebrew Synagogues, 2; Holiness Band, 1; Methodist, 9; Presbyterians, 6; United Presbyterian, 1; Second Advent (1st day), 1; Second Advent (7th day), 1; Swedenborgian, 1; Scandinavian Lutheran, 1; Swedish Evangical Lutheran, 1; Unitarian, 1; Universalist, 1. Many of these churches have elegant new edifices and large congregations. In addition there is a prosperous Y. M. C. A., which has in process of construction an elegant new building, which will be as fine and convenient as any on the coast. There are 21 public schools with a superintentent and an assistant superintendent, and about 170 teachers. There are about 30 colleges and private schools of various sizes, including the California College, Field Seminary for Young Ladies, Convent of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, the Oaks School and others. Among the prominent business features of the city are a board of trade, 5 banks, the Oakland Home Insurance Co., several large retail stores, and the following newspapers: Times, morning, daily and weekly; Tribune, evening, daily and weekly; Enquirer, evening, daily and weekly; Journal (German) weekly; American Sentinel and Signs of the Times (Seventh Day Adventist) both weekly; Labor Advocate, weekly; East Oakland News, weekly; California W. C. T. U. Bulletin, monthly. The city has a free public library, with 15,000 volumes, having a central reading room and three branch reading rooms, one each in east, west and north Oakland. The county Court House and Hall of Records are substantial structures. The transportation facilities are unexcelled. The two systems of the S. P. R. R., the broad and narrow-gauge, afford communication with San Francisco by rail and ferry every fifteen minutes. The terms of the charter granting the right of way in this city are conditioned that the above railroad company shall never charge fare within the city limits. So the people ride free on all the local trains in the city. In addition there are cable and horse-car lines in all directions through the city, and to enterprising and growing suburbs. The city has all the appointments of a first-class city, including city hall, fire department, police department, water works, gas and electric lights, well paved streets, good drainage, etc. Population, 60,000. Tel., W. U. and P. P. Also, Telephone system. Exp., W. F. & Co., Pacific and local expresses. Mail, daily. James L. Hanna, postmaster.

W. H. BLUETT, M. D.,

Specialist in Chronic Diseases,

1069 BROADWAY, Corner Twelfth Street,

OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA.

Especially Indigestion, Sympathetic Heart Disease, Dyspepsia, Acidity of the Stomach in all its forms and Chronic Diseases.

DR. W. H. BLUETT has made the study and practice of Indigestion a special branch of his profession, and no Physician in California has treated and permanently cured as many apparently hopeless cases of Dyspepsia and Indigestion than he has. His method of treatment differs widely from any other practitioner's, having stamped his individuality upon his own treatment. It was not learned from books, but having been a sufferer himself for years from Indigestion (it being hereditary in his family), he directed his attention to this particular branch of study as his life-work, and his success has justified the wisdom of that choice. Therefore, he can offer his services to others suffering from Stomach troubles of every kind, with the assurance that if he cannot cure them, it will be of little avail to look elsewhere for relief.

N. B.—Sufferers living in the interior, by corresponding with the doctor, can have a chart sent them by which they can give their symptoms and be treated at their homes with the most satisfactory results.

OROVILLE. The county seat of Butte county, is the terminus of the N. C. R. R., 29 miles north of Marysville, 79 north of Sacramento, and 170 northeast of San Francisco. It is on the east bank of the Feather river, at the base of the Sierra Nevada, and was one of the first settled towns of central California, being in early days a famous mining town, the gold yield in the vicinity reaching a million yearly. There are many rich mines yet, but citrus fruit culture, and in fact all kinds of fruit culture, is now the prominent feature of the vicinity. Being in the warm belt, at the base of the Sierras, with abundant water and a healthy climate, with half a million acres of fine fruit land surrounding it, Oroville is rapidly growing in population and wealth. The town contains Methodist, Episcopal and Congregational churches, excellent public schools, a bank, 2 newspapers, the Mercury and the Register, gas and water works, a good fire department, and Union Hall, seating 800. Gold, silver and coal are found in the vicinity, the two latter in small quantities. Oroville

PACIFIC GROVE. This is a religious seaside resort in Monterey county, after the plan of Ocean Grove, or Martha's Vineyard on the Atlantic coast. The Chautauqua assemblies, religious encampments and conventions are held here. The place was first opened by an association of the Methodist church in 1875, and they still have moral and prudential control, but the material interests went into the hands of the Pacific Improvement Company in 1880. It is on the line of the S. P. R. R.., about 2 miles north of Monterey, 22 west of Salinas, the county seat, 127 from San Francisco by rail and 85 by sea. It is located on Monterey bay, and has excellent facilities for bathing, boating, fishing, driving, etc. It has Methodist and Episcopal churches, a good public school, and a public library, also a fire department and water works. A newspaper, the Pacific Grove Review, is published weekly. The permanent population is about 700. The important shipment is sand for glass manufacturing. The land is rolling, sloping toward the ocean, and covered with a beautiful pine growth, which continues down to the waters edge,—a circumstance unknown to any other part of this coast. Exp., W. # THE PASADENA STAR, (DAILY AND WEEKLY).

By reference elsewhere in this Directory it will be seen that Pasadena is one of the most PROGRESSIVE and WIDE-AWAKE cities of Southern California.

THE DAILY STAR is the only Daily in the valley, and naturally enjoys an excellent circulation. It is a GOOD medium for advertisers.

THE WEEKLY STAR is a representative journal of the southwest coast, and especially adapted to furnishing information to strangers.

☞ Sample Copies of Daily and Weekly furnished on application.

Our ANNUAL TRADE EDITION is issued in February each year and contains an IMMENSE amount of statistical and other valuable matter.

The issue of 1890 contains a handsome lithographic Bird's-Eye View of Pasadena and suburbs—22x28 inches in size. The price is ten cents. Address,

PLACER COUNTY. For descriptive sketch, refer to General Index.

PLACERVILLE. The county seat of El Dorado county, dates as a settlement from 1849, and was incorporated as a city in 1854. It is now the terminus of the Placerville division, S. P. R. R., 149 miles northeast of San Francisco, and 59 east of Sacramento. This is one of the oldest settlements in the mining region, and its location, 1,800 feet above the level of the sea, in a broad basin amidst the mountains, makes it specially attractive and salubrious. Among the prominent features of the city are 4 churches, Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal and Catholic, two schools, with 5 teachers and 275 scholars, 2 libraries, good water works, electric light works, a volunteer fire department, the court house, and an opera house seating 900. Two newspapers are published, the Mountain Democrat, and the Republican. The land contiguous is well adapted to fruit and vegetables, and in the immediate vicinity are slate and sandstone quarries. Fruit, lumber and hay are the principal shipments. Daily stages to Auburn $3, via Granite Hill, Coloma, Lotus and Pilot Hill; tri-weekly to Georgetown $2, via Kelsey, and Garden Valley; tri-weekly to Grizzly Flat, via Newtown, Pleasant Valley, Fairplay and Mendon; and weekly in summer to Lake Tahoe, fare, $6.
